SKINNY KIBBLES

Around And About Town

With C. F. SKIRVIN

The Breakfast club has a song called the "Tinkling Dimes." The Salvation Army will soon have the "Singing Kettles," and if you do not have more than a dime the kettles will start singing their song of charity. This service will begin as soon as you deposit your money. The funds collected will go to furnish Christmas baskets which the Salvation Army will deliver the morning of that day which brings hope and good will into the world. This service is exclusive of the money awarded to the Salvation Army in the Community Chest budget. You may not only place your change but your currency and checks into the kettles, and the money will go to the purpose intended. It is an annual solicitation by this spiritual and charitable organization which brings good cheer into the homes which might otherwise be neglected. Do not pass the "Singing Kettles" until you have made your contribution to this stream of happiness.

I sometimes think we get too close to an industry to appreciate it. What started the meditation was an order by Walt Vandermast at the fountain for some orange juice. Walt's order itself was of the inquisitive type. He wasn't sure that fresh juice was available. Another angle to this subject is the infrequency of orders for orange juice. Several years ago the California Fruit Growers exchange advertised extensively juice machines, and you could get a glass of pure orange juice at almost any old food fountain. Orange juice is my favorite drink. I like it but I want it all juice. Haven't been able to buy any for sometime that was satisfactory to my discriminating taste. Guess I'm finicky.

The Christmas spirit has been accentuated by the decorations which adorn the downtown business section. They give the holiday glow to an occasion which is always looked forward to with great anticipation. The merchants have joined in the occasion, and if the displays they are making do not satisfy your desires you must be hard to please. The residential district is also taking on holiday attire, and Christmas trees with electric illumination are holding a conspicuous position. Even the lawns are being invaded and silver tips, evergreens and deodars sparkle in the moonlight to give welcome to the Gift from Heaven. Yep, it's Christmas, all right, only I find a lot of fellows who still miss the snow.

Well, here's another chance to join another club. This time it is the Christmas club. If you had joined a year ago and met your weekly payments you would have had some money to spend this Christmas which you spent during the year and could use to good advantage now.

Visit with C. M. Marks, jeweler, recalls those days when the Cherry Blossom was in full bloom. It was the swanky spot for movie actors of the silent screen. It was the allure intermediate between Los Angeles and San Diego, made popular by Clyde Alling. But in the imposition of business vicissitudes, changes occur, and the place which knew us once knows us no more forever. So Alling has gone and a new business in his old location at Bush and Fourth offers its service to the public. Instead of food it is now jewelry, luggage, and other accessories, with Marks dispensing the merchandising temptations.

As anticipated, the unwelcome desert wind arrived Saturday, and it can depart immediately, so far as I am concerned. I dislike few things in this world. Most of it is beautiful. But a desert wind inflicts such disastrous damage on orange tree foliage that I long ago have crossed it off my social list, and so far as I am concerned it can go to Yuma—maybe Phoenix.

There seems to be a disposition now to sweeten the word depression. Our experience with depression has been so disastrous we

GOLDEN CAMEL DEMOLISHED BY FLAMES

Firemen Save Nearby Buildings

Less than two hours after the last stragglers of its milling Saturday night crowd had left the building, the "Golden Camel" Orange county's biggest "night spot" was reduced to a heap of smoldering ashes by a fire apparently started by some patron's discarded cigarette. Abaze from front to back when county and city fire equipment were summoned at 3:15 a. m. Sunday, the cafe on West First street was burned to the ground as firemen played streams of water from their meager tank supplies onto adjacent property to keep flames from spreading before the brisk north wind. Loss was estimated at $6500.

STATED IN CHECK ROOM The fire apparently started in a check-room near the main entrance.

DEAD BARE TO AID SCIENCE

CHICAGO. (AP)—The young parents of 12-day-old Daniel Enneser, eleventh victim of a mysterious malady in St. Elizabeth's hospital, offered the body of their first born today that medical science might seek the cause of the intestinal disease. John G. Enneser, the father, said he and his wife, Angeline, 26, "thought it would help the other little babies" if doctors performed an autopsy on their child. Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the board of health, said the autopsy would be performed by Dr. William Saphir, chief pathologist of Michael Reese hospital, and Dr. Lloyd Arnold, bacteriologist of the Illinois department of health. The Enneser babe died last night as medical science marshaled its forces to save seven other infants stricken with epidemic diarrhea. Nineteen babies have been stricken with the disease, diagnosed as enteritis, or acute epidemic diarrhea, since Nov. 23 when the first death occurred. One infant, Sandra Traska, six weeks old, was taken home, apparently cured, but will be kept under care of health department doctors.

SECRET PROFIT QUIZ ORDERED

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure ordered Herbert Fleishhacker and the Anglo-California National bank today to make an accounting of asserted "secret profits" resulting from a 1919 steel deal with Barde Brothers of Portland, Ore., and to repay the profits to a receiver for distribution to stockholders. The suit was brought by Lucien Blum, representing a group of French stockholders of the bank, which at that time was called the Anglo-London-Paris National bank.

Revolts Fail as FDR Returns

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Although President Roosevelt will discover on his return from Florida tonight that his legislative program has made little progress, congressional chieftains will report to him that several widely rumored revolts have not materialized. When congress assembled three weeks ago, there was much speculation over the possibility that it would sidetrack the President's recommendations and substitute a business aid program of its own. Instead, the two houses have devoted themselves exclusively to administration proposals, except for a week of debate in the senate on the anti-lynching bill, which had a preferred legislative status.

JACKSON WILL HOLD FEES COLLECTED

Demands Journal Retract Story

Sheriff Logan Jackson flung down the gauntlet at Supervisor N. E. West's feet today, as he failed to turn in his fees to the county treasury. West threatened to go before the grand jury and demand steps for removal of any officials holding out fees, and he said today "my attitude has not changed." At the same time Jackson's attorney, Judge Frank Drumm, served on The Journal a demand for retraction of West's statements. Just when West will go before the grand jury to make his demand was not known; but county officials considered the issue clear-cut. Jackson was the only official who could be touched at this time by West's blast, courthouse observers said, because he is the only one of four officials whose fees would become due today, provided the new salary ordinance is valid. Jackson and District Attorney W. F. Menton hold the fee clause is illegal. Judge Drumm, Jackson's personal attorney, demanded today that The Journal retract its article on West's threat to ask removal of the officials on grounds of misuse of public funds.

U. S. WINS ANTI-TRUST FIGHT

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The government won in the supreme court today in its effort to continue with anti-trust proceedings in the southern New York federal district court seeking dissolution of the Aluminum Company of America.

A decision by a three judge circuit court at Philadelphia permitting the department of justice to go ahead with the litigation was affirmed in an opinion delivered by Justice McReynolds. Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Stone did not participate. The aluminum company contended the litigation, if any were needed, should have been brought before the federal justice court at Pittsburgh where a consent decree against the concern was entered in 1912. In filing the suit, the government charged the aluminum company and 62 other defendants with monopoly and conspiracy to monopolize trade in aluminum and related articles. It said many of the other defendants were subsidiaries, or affiliates, of the aluminum company.

NO BOGUS BILLS HERE

Knock on wood—no bogus $20 bills have turned up in Santa Ana yet, a survey of four local banks revealed this morning before noon. If any of the bad money, which is reported to have been circulated in other county communities arrived in Santa Ana during the rush hours Saturday, none of it was brought to the banks this morning.

Third Typhoon Hits Philippine Islands

MANILA, P. I. (AP)—A new typhoon isolated a huge area in the Northern Visayan Islands of the Philippine group today while reports reached Manila of a serious dysentery epidemic in Sorsogon Province, aftermath of another typhoon Armistice day. The current disturbance, third in two weeks to sweep the archipelago, was reported almost stationary over Southern Mindoro Island. Weather bureau forecasters believed the storm was lessening in fury and might pass into the China Sea before morning.

Three Smart Girls, One Unhappy

Sailed off for Europe all alone, tucked away in a berth on the Europa. These motherless children of Henry A. Coelln, Bettendorf, Ia., foundry worker, are en route to their grandfather's home in Schleswig Holstein with no one to look after them but a ship's stewardess. Twin Helen (left) faced the voyage cheerfully, while Twin Hertha looked for comfort to big sister Anna Margaret. The twins are four months old, the sister, two years. Granddaddy will sure be happy to see them.

Girl Saved From Shark Attacks

NEW YORK. (AP)—The sketchy outline of a five-hour search for a young woman who had gone overboard in black tropical seas and her eventual rescue from the shark-infested waters was disclosed today at the offices of the Luckenbach line here. The woman, Miss Eleanor Offut, of San Francisco, was reported to be "severely shocked but recovering."

MAN IN BOAT POISONED

Jules Jacques, 18, of 413 Harding street, Balboa, was recovering today from effects of a puzzling case of carbon monoxide poisoning, which lifeguards said resulted in his collapse while in a speedboat in Newport bay yesterday afternoon. Young Jacques complained of feeling dizzy while in the cockpit of a speedboat with Charley Plummer, and suddenly collapsed, it was reported. He was rushed to lifeguard headquarters, where guards administered oxygen for more than 20 minutes before he was revived. A physician also aided in the resuscitation work. Lifeguards were puzzled as to the cause of his collapse, as the cockpit of the boat was open to the air and the monoxide fumes should have been carried away by the breeze, they said. A leaky exhaust pipe probably was the cause, it was reported. After treatment by the lifeguards, young Jacques was taken to his home.

No Debt Increase, Says Morgenthau

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau, declaring no borrowing which would increase the public debt was contemplated in the next two months, offered today for sale or exchange between $4,500,000,000 and $727,000,000 of refunding securities.

Man Shoots Self as Police Seek Arrest

Beer and a .22 rifle dramatically cheated justice Saturday—after endangering the lives of two of justice's agents when a weeping Mexican wagged the gun at arresting officers and dared them to come and get him. Frank Martinez, 909 Logan street, won't face trial for morals offenses assertedly committed against his 18-year-old niece. He decided that for himself—after consuming several bottles of beer. SHOT THROUGH HEAD He's dead, shot through the head with a .22 caliber bullet from the same gun with which he dared officers to come and get him Saturday. They didn't take the dare, but radioed headquarters for a gas gun to simplify the job. Before the gas gun arrived, they cancelled the call and sent for an ambulance instead. Martinez died in the county hospital eight hours later, never fully regaining consciousness from the bullet wound. BOTTLE AND RIFLE Armed with a warrant charging rape and incest, Deputy District Attorney Gob Gardner and Deputy Sheriff J. T. Workman headed for Delhi early Saturday afternoon to find Martinez. They found him, with a beer bottle in one hand and a rifle in the other, pacing the floor of a small garage behind his house. Gardner opened the garage door, and Martinez poked the gun in his ribs. Gardner backed away. SHOOTSELF Martinez continued waving the gun, unsteadily but ominously, while deputies awaited the arrival of a gas gun. Apparently acting on impulse, he suddenly pointed the weapon at his head, pulled the trigger, groaned and fell to the floor.

KIDNAPERS GRAB N. Y. EXECUTIVE

Report $100,000 Ransom Demand

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. (AP)—Arthur. Fried, 32, wealthy sand and gravel company executive, was mysteriously missing today as police and federal agents carried on an intensive investigation of reports he had been abducted and was being held for $100,000 ransom.

From his family—his mother, wife and five brothers—came details of a kidnapping; but Reed Vetterli, head of the New York City office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, was reported to have been called upon for aid. His office in New York would only

CALL BY DEWEY Westchester county police said Fried had been called as a witness in a quiet investigation of the sand and gravel business by Thomas E. Dewey, special racket prosecutor and district attorney-elect of New York county.

District Attorney Walter Ferris of Westchester county said he had been told that the federal authorities had taken over the investigation. He declined to say more.

Report current in White Plains was that a contact had been established with the supposed kidnapers by members of the Fried family, and a meeting arranged to take place in Manhattan later in the day.

CLAIMS IGNORANCE At his Fifth avenue office in New York City one of Fried's brothers, Henry, said he knew nothing of a kidnapping or a demand for ransom.

Fried's brothers, the reports persisted, however, had made an earlier contact with the reputed kidnapers and had tried to have the amount of ransom reduced.

Fried is married and has an 8-year-old son, Arlen.

'FAIR' COTTON LAW SOUGHT

WASHINGTON. (AP)—Southwestern congressmen girded themselves today for a finish fight to write a "fair deal" for the cotton growers of California, Arizona, New Mexico and West Texas into the pending farm legislation. Defeated last week in three attempts to amend the bill in the house, they expected to renew the battle at both ends of the capitol this week in behalf of "an honest crop reduction program."

"We have just begun to fight," said Representative Gerhart (D., Calif.), one of the Southwestern leaders.

"The farm bill, as now drawn," he said, "cannot be spoken of in complimentary terms. It is nothing more than a low-down conspiracy. If the bill drafters had in mind the destruction of cotton in the irrigated areas when they drew this measure, they could not possibly have drawn it more expertly to accomplish their aim."

Alleged Shoplifter Nabbed by Clerks

Captured with two wool shirts which allegedly belonged to the Famous Department store, Fourth and Bush streets, in his possession, Harry Lewis, 37, 515 East Second street, was in county jail today on burglary charges. He was seized by two of the store clerks after allegedly wrapping the shirts in his overcoat and running out of the store.

Men Must Pay Before Voting

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The supreme court held constitutional today a Georgia law requiring male voters to pay all accumulated poll taxes due before they can vote. Justice Butler delivered the decision on litigation brought by Nolen R. Breedlove of Atlanta. Butler announced no dissent.

11 DOGS SHOT IN LA HABRA EPIDEMIC

Stray Canine Spreads Disease

Eleven dogs at La Habra have been killed by authorities during the week-end and a 90-day quarantine has been placed on all dogs in the community as the result of the appearance of rabies there, according to County Health Officer K. H. Sutherland.

A large police dog, believed to have been a stray, is said to have been the carrier of the germ. The animal appeared about 7:30 Friday morning in the 500 block on East Central avenue and bit a small dog in one of the yards on that street. The matter was reported to authorities who, according to Dr. Sutherland, learned that at least 15 other dogs in the community had been bitten by the animal.

The police dog was killed, and tests revealed it had been suffering from rabies. The 15 known dogs to have come into contact with this animal were at once rounded up and 11 of them killed. Four others have been impounded. Persons at La Habra who may have been bitten by dogs during the last week or who know of any dogs who have been bitten are requested by county health authorities to report the matter to the police department at once.

As the disease sometimes acts slowly after an animal has been exposed to it the 90-day quarantine has been established at La Habra, Dr. Sutherland said. All dogs must be confined in an enclosure, tied up or kept on a leash during the quarantine period. From the Los Angeles county health department comes word there have been on an average of five dogs daily known to have contracted the disease in that county during the past 11 months.

CRANSTON CASE SET OVER

Competency of J. A. Cranston, former superintendent of schools, to act as guardian of the estate of an 80-year-old woman was challenged in court again today as Cranston gave evidence that he had replaced $463.35 in a bank account as guardian.

Hearing of the controversy was continued to Jan. 7 by Superior Judge G. K. Scovel as Harry O. Warton and Morris Cain, attorneys who seek Cranston's removal as guardian, filed an amendment to their petition asking that he be ousted.

West's Salary Claim Challenged

Supervisor N. E. West's claim that the board's new county salary ordinance upped pay 14.3 per cent was blasted today by a computation of Auditor W. T. Lambert, disclosing salaries alone are only 8.05 per cent higher and that mileage decreases cut total compensation to a lower percentage. Lambert's figures also showed that the eight courthouse janitors and gardeners, paid from $80 to $130 a month, were cut more than any other department, receiving a 6.81 per cent decrease. At the same time the district attorney's office pay was upped 19.47 per cent, welfare department 17.27 per cent and the police radio department 21.84 per cent.

Weather Isn't Fooling Anyone

By BRADEN FINCH If this weather keeps up, Santa Claus may have to slide the chimney in a bathing suit. Prevailing temperatures are more favorable to a beach party than a gallop over snow-covered rooftops behind a team of reindeer. The weather is fooling anybody. Just this morning a youngster out in our neighborhood passed the house hugging a big Christmas tree. And the calendar says there only 15 more shopping days until the big event.

NOOSE FACES SUSPECTED KIDNAPERS OF ANTI-SALOON LEADER

STATE WILL SEEK DEATH PENALTY

Trial Opens After Death of Dr. Seder

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—A jury qualified to return a death penalty was assembled today to try Arnett A. Booth, 46, accused of kidnapping Dr. James I. Seder, 79, retired minister and dry leader. Capital punishment question for prospective jurors bore out the state's promise to ask a hanging verdict for the former convict—one of three men charged with spiriting the clergyman to a coal mine. Two other defendants, John Travis and Orville Adkins, 24, obtained separate trials. Federal Agent R. E. Vetterli said they also have prison records, and that a demand for $50,000 ransom was never met.

SEEK 'BREAK'

Dr. Seder, one-time state president of the Anti-Saloon league, was abducted from his home Nov. 1. Federal and state officers vainly sought a "break" in the case.

Then, 10 days later, the aged churchman stumbled bleeding and suffering from the cold "from woods not far from Huntington and told how he had been held captive in a damp, abandoned coal mine.

He died four days later, physicians declaring that pneumonia "undoubtedly" was caused by confinement in the coal mine pit.

The agents, who said the suspects had been under surveillance, arrested the three prisoners within 24 hours and a special Cabell county grand jury indicted them on charges of kidnapping and murder.

DEATH PENALTY

Defense Counsel Frank W. Riggs and John G. Hudson said Booth would plead insanity. Prosecutor E. E. Winters, jr., said the state would demand the death penalty.

The investigators, reconstructing the case after the arrests, asserted a "bouncing" check preceded the kidnapping. Booth was Dr. Seder's tenant and had given the clergyman a check. Vetterli declared the suspects signed confessions admitting they had enticed Dr. Seder from his home by promising payment of money due on the bad check.

Travis was married during the time the minister was held in the mine and his 19-year-old wife, Vera, said she would sit with her husband at his trial "because I love him."

D. B. Daugherty, counsel for Travis and Adkins, has declared Dr. Seder was freed at the insistence of the mothers of his clients.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

don't care to even hear about it anymore, so a smoke screen is put up and it is called "repression," which is just another admission that business is retreating, going backward, and I can't get any more comfort out of that than I can out of an admitted depression. And what have we? Sugar-coated words are all right until the sugar wears off, and then the bitter taste comes to the surface. I hope we do not have another depression, but if we do have it I won't cure the situation any by giving it a euphonic name.

The bar is not all sold on the jury system, says an attorney who was discussing the issue with a citizen. It used to be "twelve good men and true," now changed to include the women by equal suffrage. The system is now politically motivated. Applications are made for jury service, and often on the basis of having supported some official during election. It may or may not have its influence. Often the best material is not available because that kind of qualification is employed full time, and does not seek public service. Some states have a system whereby they take the first name on the tax rolls, then the tenth, and so on until a full panel is selected. This is done regardless of applications. The verdicts of juries, even in cases where confessions have been made, are sometimes an amazing conclusion.

Mercury Dizzy Trying to Record Morning Weather

Early-rising residents who shivered this morning had a reason for it—but they'd have been much better off by arising at 2 o'clock, when typical summer weather prevailed. According to the official thermometer at Knox and Stout's, the weatherman almost ran himself dizzy trying to keep up with temperatures brought about by the first desert wind of the year. At 1 a. m. today it was cold—52 degrees. Less than an hour later, the thermometer had jumped 20 degrees, to a sweltering 72 at 2 a. m. And then it got cold again, with an icy 48 degrees at 6 a. m.

How Essential Is College Football?

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The supreme court may be asked to decide whether football is an "essential state function." The question arose in connection with federal taxes on tickets of admission to college football games. Four state universities—Iowa, West Virginia, Minnesota and Georgia—have challenged the government's right to force them to collect the tax. The universities contend the government is without authority to tax a state institution performing an essential state function—football is essential, they say.

FIRE DESTROYS GOLDEN CAMEL

The northeast corner of the stucco structure was aflame when first noticed by Ray T. Dixon, co-owner of the property who lives in a house in front of the night club.

The building was valued at $5600, and an additional $900 damage was done to furniture and equipment, according to Joe Scherman, chief of the state division of forestry crew that answered the call.

LIQUOR SAVED

Severa cases of liquor were the only articles salvaged. The Santa Ana firemen cooperated with state fire trucks from Midway City and Orange in a futile attempt to extinguish the fire. Only water available was several hundred gallons brought to the scene in tank trucks. Dixon and his father, C. E. Dixon, are co-owners of the property, part of which is leased to Doug White and Carl Metz. The building was not insured, the owners reported, although insurance covered part of the equipment destroyed.

Two other fires broke out in rural areas of the county over the week-end, a grass fire causing $25 damage yesterday in the back yard of M. E. Bates' home on East Fifth street south of Garden Grove, and another fire causing $100 damage to a back porch and garage at Charles A. Hunt's home between Olive and Anaheim Saturday evening. The latter fire started from a faulty hot water tank.

Strike Closes Bellingham News

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP)—The Bellingham Evening News, which reopened last Thursday after being closed by a guild strike for six months, was closed again today. Printers and reporters refused to go through a picket line. Employees told Publisher S. S. Harrison they received threatening telephone calls at their homes and were harassed on the streets. Harrison said plans for resuming publication were indefinite.

LINDBERGH'S RETURN TO NATIVE LAND

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are home from a two-year exile abroad but the guarded acres of the Morrow estate close by the rim of the Hudson's river's pallsades hold the secret of why they have come and how long they will stay.

The hero of American aviation and his wife, Anne, who has shared many notable flights with him, slipped unheralded into New York yesterday morning aboard the United States liner President Harding.

They had sailed from Southampton, Nov. 27 under the incognito of "Mr. and Mrs. Gregory" for their first trip to their native land since they went to England in desperate search of the seclusion they felt they could not find here—just 16 days short of two years ago.

A waiting car whisked them from the Manhattan dock to the 52-acre estate of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's 64-year-old mother, and the only word of authoritative status concerning their plans came from a ship's officer who said: "Their visit will be brief. They plan to return abroad immediately after Christmas."

END EXILE

Other than that, there was a bubbling spring of conjecture in a desert of fact: opinions that the Lindberghs' trip might be a prelude to ending the exile self-imposed in an effort to rebuild their lives shattered by the kidnapping and death of their first born son, Charles A. Lindbergh, jr.; theories that he might have come on a mission connected with the expansion of American aviation; even suggestions that he might be on an errand of science connected with development of the artificial heart of which he is co-inventor. Whatever the purpose that impelled them to return, their secret was well kept. Telephone inquiries at the Morrow estate, brought not even an acknowledgment that the colonel and his wife were there.

Wright Hearing Delay Sought

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Paul A. Wright, airport manager, is due in court today for preliminary hearing, but his attorney said he would seek more time for his client to prepare for his case. Wright is charged with shooting his wife and best friend, John Kimmel.

The attorney, Jerry Geisler, said he would ask for a delay until Thursday or Friday to give him more time for preparing his case. Wright is charged with shooting his wife, Evelyn, and Kimmel to death when he found them embracing in his home.

Dog Makes Long Trek to Home

OLDHAM, S. D. (AP)—Duke, a black Great Dane, recently taken to Schuyler, Neb., to a new owner, was back at his old home today, backtracking more than 300 miles in five and one-half days. Duke, 20 months old and weighing 176 pounds, lost about 15 pounds on the trip. He drank about a gallon and a half of water on arriving, but refused food before taking a long sleep. The dog formerly belonged to a local kennel.

Drunkenness in Leningrad Fought

LENINGRAD, Russia. (American Wire)—A campaign against drunkenness was in full swing here today, following action of Leningrad city authorities in closing a number of saloons near factories and children's institutions and establishing fines of 25 to 50 rubles or seven to 15 days of hard labor for people appearing in public in a drunken condition.

Irish Didn't Get Raleigh Potatoes

DUBLIN, (American Wire)—The legend Sir Walter Raleigh introduced the potato into Ireland from Virginia is untrue, according to a report by Prof. W. L. Davison of the Irish Free State department of agriculture. The vegetable reached Ireland by way of Europe, being introduced to the continent in 1588, he claimed.

Yukon Prices at Gold Rush Levels

DAWSON CITY, Y. T. (American Wire)—With winter setting in, prices are soaring in the Yukon city to the levels of gold rush days. The current blue law crime wave broke out when Berry started enforcement of the old statute against Kiriny. The theater manager's retort was a petition demanding general enforcement. Berry took heed.

Blatt Pays and Pays for Bopping Blonde Dancer

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Superior Judge Thomas White sentenced Samuel Blatt, 30, salesman, today to serve 90 days in jail and placed him on five years probation, on his conviction of assaulting Honey Dixon, 21, blonde dancer.

At the trial, Miss Dixon testified Blatt struck her and broke her jaw after she broke off their engagement. She said the attack was in the office of a film executive last July 18.

Judge White also ordered Blatt to pay Miss Dixon $10 a week for doctor and dentist bills.

JAPANESE MAY TAKE NANKING

said the unit was advancing from Tan-Yang, on the grand canal about 45 miles east of Nanking. The Japanese also announced they had broken the boom across the Yangtze at Kiangyin and that battleships were steaming upstream to bombard Chinkiang.

Japanese planes, meanwhile, were reported making heavy attacks on an allegedly bewildered Chinese retreating both from Nanking and Wuhu.

Chinese sources reported the 32,270-ton Japanese battleship Nagato sunk by aerial bombs on the lower Yangtze between Tungchow and Fushan. Japanese discounted the report.

A Japanese embassy spokesman acknowledged that British consular authorities had made a telephonic report on the bombing of a British warship and two British merchantmen yesterday at Wuhu. He said, however, no question of a British protest or of demands for compensation had arisen. The spokesman added that Japanese authorities had no statement to make about the incident.

CAPTAIN INJURED

The commander of the British gunboat Ladybird and two other Britons were injured when Japanese planes raided the Wuhu waterfront yesterday. Two British river steamers were hit. The 3770-ton Tuck-Wo, belonging to the Indo-China Steam Navigation company, was set ablaze and was believed to be a total loss.

Officials of the company said they understood the Tuck-Wo had between 2000 and 3000 Chinese refugees aboard. She rammed into a British-owned landing hulk which also burned.

Total damage was estimated as about $500,000.

Court Backs Tax Collection Plea

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The supreme court decided today that lower federal tribunals do not have jurisdiction to prevent two or more states from attempting to impose inheritance taxes on the same estate.

The ruling, delivered by Justice Stone, was on an appeal by the Worcester County Trust company of Massachusetts, executor of the estate of Robert H. Hunt, who died in 1935. Stone announced no dissent.

Both California and Massachusetts claimed to be his legal domicile and each sought to collect more than $100,000 of taxes.

ROBBERS GET $2000

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Two young men held up M. Bogert, a drug store messenger and seized approximately $2000 in cash today in the 5400 block, Wilshire boulevard. Bogert was en route to a bank to deposit the money for his firm.

'LORD'S DELAY' PASTOR'S TEXT

The Rev. W. J. Hatter, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Messiah, addressed his congregation yesterday on the Advent season, choosing his text from Matthew 24:45-51, "My Lord delayeth His coming."

The season of Advent is one in which the church suggests preparedness to her children—preparedness for the second coming of Christ. The passage of Scripture chosen for consideration has its bearing upon this matter. The subject in the sketch portrayed most originally have been a gifted man, otherwise never placed in such a high position.

With His master present, he could please him, but the basis of his actions had been a love of approval. At first that worked after his master's departure. He lived with an eye for the Lord's return and also to His praise. But when both were delayed he soon proved to himself and showed that he was not great.

His secret dry rot showed itself and consequently the whisper passed around, "The overseer is slipping and is neglecting his work." So others neglected theirs. A long 300 years passed before their faith proved at all triumphant. Small wonder that many recanted, feeling that their Lord delayed his coming.

Nothing mattered; then his early triumphant church had again to face the temptation. When it became formal and men lost heart—her cross no spiritual blessing. The revival so much so that the servants of God became profligate. The present does not differ so very greatly.

In recent years there have been no great startling signs of blessings. Men are asking, "Where is the promise of His coming?" But we thank God that during the present year of 1937, there have been some evidences of a real awakening in the great Oxford and Edinburgh conferences. And it is a grand thing if at the present time any church or person will work on conscientiously, just as if the Lord were not delaying.

Killing Score Mounts as Japan Officers Compete

TOKYO, (AP)—The score was 89 to 78 today in the race between two Japanese sub-lieutenants to see which would be the first to kill 100 Chinese soldiers, the newspaper Nichi Nichi reported from Kuyung, China. The rivals had raised their scores within a week from 56 and 26 respectively.

NOW THERE ARE THREE BAERS

$500,000 Value Set on Quints By Dr. Dafoe

OTTAWA, Ont. (Canadian Press)—The Dionne Quintuplets are to be trained to withstand the public stare like a "royal family," it was disclosed today.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the five famous sisters, said they would be educated to understand they are unique—yet to grow normally not with standing, just as children of royal families are trained to disregard the public attention they attract.

Dr. Dafoe said the quintuplets were "worth" about $500,000 and added: "The only privacy they will ever get will be what they buy."

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

After pleading guilty to a non-support charge, Joe Harding was given a year's sentence in county jail, suspended on condition he make monthly payments of $20 to the probation department for support of his minor child. Harding was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Kenneth E. Morrison.

He is slated for election as second vice president in the list prepared by a special committee. Benjamin F. Schreiber, lawyer, will be elected president, and former Sheriff David H. Knott, first vice president.

PRISON KILLERS FACE DEATH

SACRAMENTO, (AP)—Superior Judge Dal M. Lemmon will sentence five convicts convicted of murdering Warden Clarence Larkin in a Folsom prison riot Sept. 19 to death today. They were convicted of first degree murder charges. If the sentences are carried out the five will be the first to die in California's new lethal gas chamber. Their cases will be automatically appealed to the state supreme court.

Stan Laurel in Marriage Mixup

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—The $1000-a-month maintenance suit of Mae Laurel against dour-faced Stan Laurel, film comedian, was dismissed today when it was called for trial, attorneys explaining that a settlement had been effected out of court.

She claimed in her suit that she was the comedian's former vaudeville partner and that they traveled together and were billed as "Stan and Mae Laurel." Although the terms of the settlement today were not disclosed, lawyers said it had been stipulated that the woman never was Laurel's legal wife.

Mae Laurel had asked for an accounting and division of community property she estimated at $100,000. Her suit was filed shortly after Laurel was sued for divorce by Virginia Ruth Laurel, to whom he was married in 1934. She won a divorce Dec. 24, 1936, but the couple has since been reconciled and parted again, and the interlocutory decree still stands on the court records.

NEW YORK, (AP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley, national and state chairman of the Democratic party, will get another job tomorrow night at the annual election of the National Democratic club.

He is slated for election as second vice president in the list prepared by a special committee. Benjamin F. Schreiber, lawyer, will be elected president, and former Sheriff David H. Knott, first vice president.

Owners Row Over Bet Store

Imaginary lines, buildings within a building, banks and bookmaking agencies brewed a minor teapot tempest at 204 1/2 East Fourth street today.

The question of the day became "when is a building not a building, or where lies no-man's land," as Mrs. Catherine Skiles prepared to do battle with whatever foes may be.

Presumably, Mrs. Skiles intimated, her battle is to be with any who connect her half of the building at 204 1/2 East Fourth street with the Finley Company's half of the same building.

For a betting agency opened this week in room 207 of the building at 204 1/2 East Fourth street. This agency rented its space from the Finley company, operated by Wendell Finley.

Across an imaginary line in the middle of the hall lies the territory controlled by Mrs. Skiles, who inherited her half of the building from her father, the late John Cubbon.

Mrs. Skiles emphatically declared she would rent no space to betting agencies. Her clients are doctors and lawyers, she said.

On the Finley side of the building a liquor store fronts on the street, a betting agency operates upstairs.

"They can do what they want with their half of the building," Mrs. Skiles said, "but they can't confuse the name. My building is the Commercial National Bank building. Theirs is the Finley building."

Something of a dilemma presented its horns to both Mrs. Skiles and Finley, however, as the same address needs must serve for both buildings.

Mrs. Skiles said much of her protest was based on the fact the Commercial National bank was objecting to its building being identified with the betting agency.

Which in itself is something of a paradox, because Col. S. H. Finley, the senior member of Finley company (which rents to the agency) is also a director of the bank, which protests against the agency's being there.

And there you are.

Charged with violating probation by getting drunk a few hours before a year's jail sentence was suspended on condition he refrain from liquor for the next two years, Bryant Coyle, 37, Linger apartments, today was sentenced to serve the year's sentence in county jail.

Justice of Peace Kenneth E. Morrison ordered jailers to put Coyle to work for the next year, with the county making monthly payments of $30 to Coyle's wife for support of a minor child.

Sportsmanship Fine Trait

By DALE CARNEGIE

I can think of no finer trait than good sportsmanship. It means bearing defeat nobly and congratulating the other fellow on winning. It's not easy, but if you can do this, you have at least an element of greatness.

Captain Robert F. Scott, of England, had a life-long ambition to discover the South Pole, and directed all his energies toward DALE CARNEGIE.

The great difficulty of raising money finally surmounted, he sailed away, back there in 1912, on the "Terra Nova" for the goal of his dreams.

Enormous waves battered the hull. Some of the cargo was swept from the deck. Tons of sea water thundered down into the hold. The boiler fires were swamped. The pumps were clogged. And for days the gallant ship rolled recklessly in the trough of the smashing seas. They suffered almost beyond belief. But what matter?

At last, over the ice Captain Scott and four companions made the final dash for the Pole. When they came in sight of the Pole, Scott experienced for a moment the exultation of victory.

Then he looked around—and found a calm of ice. Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer had got there just five weeks before!

Can your imagination picture what Scott must have experienced at that moment? Well, I can faintly imagine the state of his emotions. What did Scott and his companions do? Just this: They cheered for Amundsen and started home. That was sportsmanship.

Caught in a blizzard, every man died down there in that icy No Man's Land. When it had become evident that no one could survive, Scott wrote letters to friends, (though he wasn't at all sure the letters would ever reach their destination) giving all credit to Amundsen for the victory he himself had hoped to achieve. And he added that in these, their last days, he and his men were of good cheer. A good sport to the end!

I am writing these lines on a train. We are just leaving the town of Wixom, Michigan. The trees are bare; the fields are brown; the rain is beating against the windows of the car; it is a dreary day. And I have just finished reading a sad letter. An old friend of mine recently "changed worlds" as the Japanese say. Forty-nine. A heart attack. His wife was a good wife; he had a happy home; two children.

Her letter to me read: "It is hard for me to face each new day without him. He never knew how much I loved and needed him. 'He never knew how much I loved him.' How much tragedy lies behind those words. I am not an authority on heart disease. Maybe I am wrong; but my wild guess is that if my friend had known how essential he was to the happiness of others, he might be living today. At least, he would have been happier while he did live."

School Burglar Gets 55 Cents

Property damage was more extensive than the few cents stolen when two Orange county schools were burglarized Saturday night.

Fifty-five cents were taken from a drawer in the Olive grammar school office after a burglar forced a door to gain entrance, then broke into a locked desk while he was ransacking the place.

A few cents were stolen from drawers in the Garden Grove high school office, apparently by the same person. Exact amount of the loss was unknown.

SIX INJURED IN WEEK-END TRAFFIC

Six persons were hurt, none seriously, in week-end accidents on Orange county highways, police and highway patrol reports showed today.

Edward Sefton Shannon, 519 East Fourth street, was struck by an unidentified car as he was leaving Curley's cafe, Fourth and Brecken streets, Santa Ana, last night. He sustained a head injury that necessitated two stitches at Orange county hospital.

William B. Blakely, 1416 Maple street, was injured as his bicycle and a car driven by Paul J. Dale, 28, 109 East Fifth street, collided at Orange and Oxford streets last night.

An accident on Flower street between Tenth and Washington streets just before Friday night's football game in Municipal bowl injured Ross Frisbie, 16, 276 South Main street, Orange, police learned Saturday. Frisbie was riding with Jack Hamilton, 17, 909 West Bishop street, when Hamilton's car and one driven by Charles Peddicord, 17, Anaheim, collided.

Joe Wagener, 57, and Mrs. Emily Wagener, 51, Whittier, were injured when the car in which they were riding, driven by Maynard Beard, 29, Whittier, assertedly was struck by Calvin Oliver Krieger, 19, 143 North Yale street, Fullerton, on Kraemer street a mile northeast of Placentia late last night.

Wilbur Adkins, 301 South Main street, was slightly hurt when struck by Mrs. Mae Josephine Thomas, 66, 1112 West Chestnut, as he was walking across Bush street at Fourth street last night.

The day-bed so popular with apartment dwellers is of French origin.

SPORTS Roundup

By BRIETZ EDDIE

NEW YORK. (AP)—Those Chicago pictures showing Burleigh Grimes smoking a pipe with a regulation bowl didn't make a hit with Brooklyn fans. They fear it indicates the Dodgers are slowly returning to normalcy. The North Dakota school which fired Stubb Allison, California's Rose Bowl coach, doesn't know what it is to have a real red face. The University of Nevada gave the air to Buck Shaw, coach of Santa Clara's Sugar Bowl team, not once, but twice—once as freshman and once as varsity coach. Some of the alumni out there still are looking for the guy who fired Buck.

Reliable sources say Stuffy McGinnis, ex-big league star, will leave Norwich (Vt.) university to coach baseball at Cornell. Little Davey O'Brien, Texas Christian's spark plug, may not be the best back in the Southwest conference, but he certainly was the busiest. In their 10 games, the Frogs ran 730 yards from scrimmage. O'Brien was either the ball carrier, passer or kicker on 486. He hurried the ball 166 times, passed 234 times and kicked 83 times, besides attempting three field goals. Nice going, Dave.

Coltich or pro football. The Polo grounds was sold out yesterday for the first time since the baseball season—and the pros did it. Write your own ticket. Washington certainly turned out the juice. Between them, Cliff Battles and Sammy Baugh had the Giants crazy. Battles is the best running back in the league for our money, and Baugh is every bit as good as they said he was. And that's plenty. Wonder where George Preston Marshall got those real Injuns he hugs around as part of the Redskins' side show?

There are two U. Johnsons on the Pitt basketball team. Both are left forwards. They are listed in the lineup as "U. Johnson No. 1 and U. Johnson No. 2." Rumors that a syndicate, headed by former Mayor Jimmy Walker and Jock Whitney, will buy the Dodgers are said to be holding up the sale or trade of Van Mungo. Tommy Farr, who is due this week to seek Schmeling and Thomas, has been cleaning up with theater appearances in England at $1000 to $1500 a throw.

Henry Crisp, Alabama line coach, will make his fifth trip to the Rose Bowl with the Tide for New Year's day. The Henry Armstrong-Enrico Venturi fight in the Garden Dec. 17 is definitely off because Armstrong is too homesick for Los Angeles. That squab about two Harlen (Ky.) high school teams using coal dust to mark off a snow-covered gridiron made folks up around Worcester, Mass., yawn. Seems they pulled the same stunt on Dec. 13 last year. Beg, pardon, gents. Well, wasn't that Associated Press All-America a pip?

DOESN'T MOVE FAST
NEW ORLEANS. (AP)—Larry Gilbert has been with the New Orleans Southern association baseball club for 23 years as player, manager and business manager.

Ernie Lain • • • Cotton Bowl Rivals • • • 'Whizzer' White

Champion Rice thrower of passes is a 212-pound sophomore, Ernie Lain, whose sensational playing sparked the Owls to the Southwestern championship. They will meet Colorado's famed "Whizzer" White in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Texas.

RICE CHAMPS AWAIT COTTON BOWL TILT WITH COLORADO

DALLAS, Texas. (AP)—Only the stand of Rice Institute against unbeaten Colorado and "Whizzer" White in the Cotton Bowl New Year's day remains to complete a southwest football season that left everyone limp and Rice the champion.

It took another healthy performance by Halfback Ernest Herschel Lain to bring its second title in four years. Saturday afternoon he jumped off the bench after Southern Methodist had taken a touchdown lead.

Twice he paced across touchdowns. Thrice he battered and passed the Owls within hopping distance of the goal line. On one of those occasions Jack Vestal booted a field goal. The final score: Lain 15, Southern Methodist 7.

Bernard (Bunny) Oakes, Colorado coach, sat in the stands, puffed his pipe and shook his head as the 218-pounder crashed the Methodist line and hurled nine passes for 141 yards.

Ticket sales jumped with the assurance Lain would appear on the same field with "Whizzer" White, the all-America quarterback who led the nation's collegiate scorers with 122 points.

'OPEN OFFENSE' CLAMOR OF PIGSKIN COACHES

NEW YORK. (AP)—Despite agitation for three specific rule changes designed to help the offense in football, a nation-wide poll of college coaches by the Associated Press today revealed a strong general desire to "leave well enough alone."

This may help simplify the task of the National Collegiate A. A. rules committee, which goes into its annual huddle on New Year's day at Edgewater Park, Miss.

This session, which is being held months earlier than usual, will follow the annual N. C. A. A. convention in New Orleans.

DOWN DEFENSE
Subject to various reservations, such as those proposed by Notre Dame's Elmer Layden and Nebraska's Biff Jones, a "no tinkering" policy with regard to the rules is advocated by a majority of head coaches. The list favoring conservative approach to any consideration or rules changes includes Jock Sutherland of Pittsburgh, Dick Harlow of Harvard, Bill Kenyon of Carnegie, Hank Harwick of Navy, Ray Morrison of Vanderbilt, Wallace Wade of Duke, Stubb Allison of California and Harry Kipp of Michigan.

The veteran Glenn (Pop) Warner of Temple heads the coaching wing which feels something drastic should be done to the defense, with its five-man line as a prime example, from getting the upper hand on the gridiron.

The three changes most discussed as likely to aid the offense, comprise (1) return of the goal posts to the goal line; (2) legalizing forward passing from any covered Valentino's fumble on the Don 24. On the next play Hamaker passed to Warhurst in the end zone.

In the closing minutes of play an interference penalty on the Don 10-yard line gave the Saints a chance for a score.

With the stands praying for a miracle and only 30 yards left in the game, Hamaker passed in complete into the end zone.

A line play failed as Santa Ana was penalized five for too many times out. Coach Foote rushed alling Wayne Piper into the game.

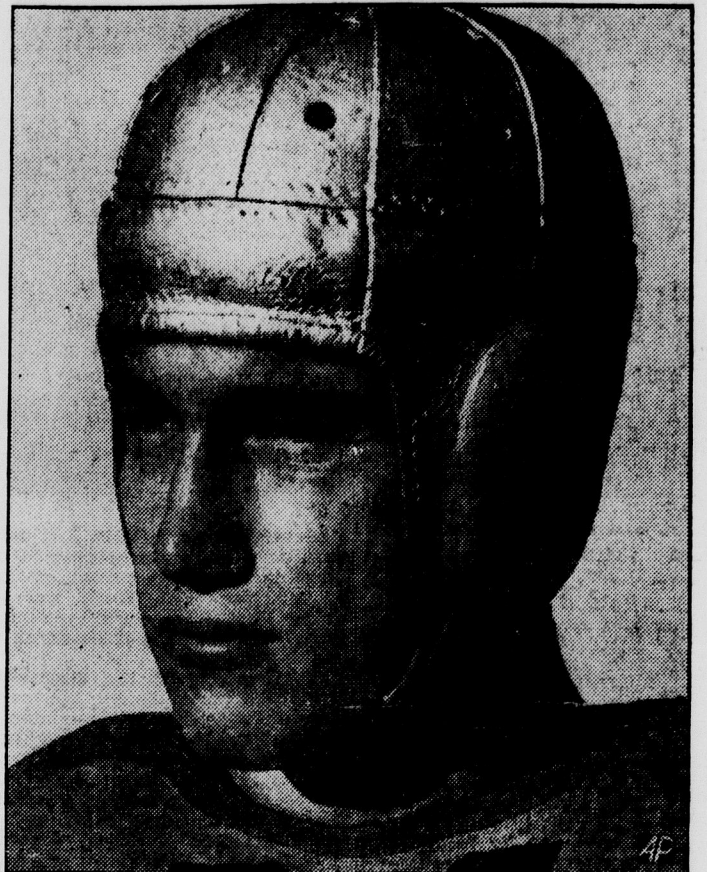

Then, instead of saving precious seconds by passing, the Saint quarterback elected to run the ball. Piper was smothered back on the 20 yard line as the gun barked.

Loyola Rallies To Win Over Gonzaga, 13-8

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—An unfortunate football season was at an end today for the Lions of Loyola university, but they closed it in belated glory with a 13-8 victory over Gonzaga of Spokane.

The Lions' first marker was a punt from behind to win. Gonzaga gathered its points in the first period, Dick Beauregard snagging a pass and running it across for a touchdown, and Jack Inhoff falling on a blocked Loyola punt for two more points.

Washington, U. C. L. A. negro back, hurried the pass in the final quarter of the Bruins' game with Southern California last Saturday.

Not many seconds before, he had tossed a touchdown pass and the Trojans' lead had been cut to 19 to 7. Washington's second scoring heave made the score 19 to 13, which was the final result.

There were various estimates about the length of the toss, but the films of the game showed definitely that Washington stood on his 15-yard line and tossed, and Hirschman grabbed it on the Trojan 23-yard marker.

TWILA HEATH TRIUMPHS

Rallying in surprising fashion after dropping the first set, Twila Heath of Santa Ana captured the women's singles title of Alhambra's first annual badminton tournament last night.

Virginia Kalschian of Pasadena took the first set, 3-1, but wilted in the next two with Miss Heath, 11-2 and 13-10.

Dave Freeman, 17-year-old Pasadena, defeated Webb Kimball of Santa Barbara to win the men's singles crown. He out-scored Kimball, 15-10, 15-6.

Ena Pete and George Dewar of Pasadena, defeated Goss and Don Schofield of Los Angeles in men's doubles, 13-15, 11-15, 15-11.

Washington Redskins Battle Bears in Pro Grid Playoff

NEW YORK. (AP)—What possibly is the most effective scoring combination in football history—Cliff Battles, the ball-carrying wildcat, and Sammy Baugh, the peerless passer—has shot the surprising Washington Redskins through to the championship of the eastern division of the National Professional football league.

Sammy and Cliff and the rest of the remarkable Redskins did it the terrific way yesterday, terrorizing the New York Giants, 49 to 14, before 58,000 enthralled fans at the Polo Grounds. Among those who witnessed the electrifying battle were 7000 wild-eyed Washington rooters, who ripped up the goal posts and everything.

The way Cliff and Sammy cut dices behind their savagely thrusting forward wall, it is difficult to picture them as losers next Sunday, when they meet the Chicago Bears, champions of the western division, at Chicago's Wrigley Field in their play-off for the league title. The Bears, with nothing at stake, steam-rolled the Chicago Cardinals, 42 to 28, in their final yesterday.

Cliff the runner and Sammy the thrower demoralized the Giants. Between them, they chopped the New Yorkers' defense into kindling wood, and it previously had been regarded as one of the

The other first-stringers were Acting apt. Don Warhurst, center, and Bob Maddock, guard. Both are seniors. Warhurst was shifted to left end during the latter part of the season, and his early play at the pivot post stamped him as the prep league's outstanding center.

It's well-named "jiffy crochet," for it works up into a mat in no time at all. And the mats are exceptionally useful, because they are heavy enough to protect your table from hot plates and yet lend a charming, festive air. In pattern 5986 you will find complete instruction for making an oval mat 14x12 inches and round ones 10½ inches in diameter; an illustration of them and of the stitches used; a photograph of a section of a mat; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Santa Ana Journal, Household Arts Dept., 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana, Calif. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

"ALIBI GIRL"

By ROB EDEN
Copyright, 1937
The Register and Tribune Syndicate

Begin here:
Nancy Roland, summoned to police headquarters supposedly to aid in solving the mysterious murder of her wealthy uncle, Dodge Roland, realizes, after hours of questioning, that she is being accused of the crime! "But I was with my cousin, Alan, at the time," she insists. Captain Wyman thereupon summons Jerry, the girl's uncle, who is a well-known figure in the city. "I know you," he says, "but I don't know you."

Tom never had belonged. He had come into her life like a whirlwind, demanding attention, amusement. She had been too busy giving both the attention and the amusement to him and to herself to find a plan for him beside her father and Olive.

THINK CALMLY
She could think of Tom quite calmly, as calmly as she could think of Lois' and Walter's visit to her a short time ago—or as it yesterday, a week ago, a month ago?

Already it seemed as far in the past as Tom was. The conversation with Julian had done that—carried her out of the present and into something else that had no definite time limits.

Yes, she could see Tom and rate him for what he was, but there was no rancor in what she saw in him and what she thought about him.

There might have been if Mr. Howard hadn't been so completely in her thoughts. Surely there would have been if Mr. Howard hadn't come into her life.

Thoughts of Julian, like a slow easy river. The remembrance of thoughts of Tom Miley like a rushing stream, going here, going there, never pausing for breath.

The slow stream, the slow river was better. You had time to look around, to think, to breathe.

She was sorry she had taken the picture of Tom, torn it up in a moment of anger. She could dismiss Tom that easily.

"I think I love him," she said to the room in general. "I think I do. I know I do."

She told Olive when she came in the early afternoon.

Olive listened quietly, and Nancy thought that Olive had been doing that for some time. That quiet intensity that was a warm glow of interest.

Olive shook her head, though, when she finished. "You don't know him," she said flatly. "You've seen him only once. Once in Captain Wyman's office, and yesterday at his hotel."

"I know."

"Besides, a good many other girls and other women have been in love with him. They must have been. Nancy. He's that kind of a man. When I talked to him outside Captain Wyman's office that morning they took you to jail—well, I felt it would be easy for me to fall in love with him—if I wanted to let myself. He has a quality of kindness about him that I know."

"I know."

"And Nancy, he isn't doing this for you. He isn't doing this because he is interested in you as a woman, as a girl. He's doing it because he wants to study your reactions, because he's interested in you as a laboratory specimen. As an experiment."

"Y—You mean that Mr. Blair had told you that? Well, Mrs. Blair was in to see me this afternoon, just before I came away, and he explained the whole thing to me again."

"I know." There didn't seem to be anything else to say. Nancy knew all that Olive was trying to tell her. They were all arguments she had used to herself before Olive had come home. She knew the answers to everything about Julian Howard. She was honest with herself.

Only a sureness and a clearness that she had never had before. The sureness and the clearness she had when she thought about her father, and about Olive.

Both of them had a niche in her life—great large niches. Here was Julian Howard, too, with a niche beside those of her father and of Olive.

Tom never had belonged. He had come into her life like a whirlwind, demanding attention, amusement. She had been too busy giving both the attention and the amusement to him and to herself to find a plan for him beside her father and Olive.

THINK CALMLY
She could think of Tom quite calmly, as calmly as she could think of Lois' and Walter's visit to her a short time ago—or as it yesterday, a week ago, a month ago?

Already it seemed as far in the past as Tom was. The conversation with Julian had done that—carried her out of the present and into something else that had no definite time limits.

Yes, she could see Tom and rate him for what he was, but there was no rancor in what she saw in him and what she thought about him.

There might have been if Mr. Howard hadn't been so completely in her thoughts. Surely there would have been if Mr. Howard hadn't come into her life.

WOMEN PAY BIG FINES IN ORANGE

ORANGE. — Justice of the Peace Cal D. Lester fined two women a total of $400 Saturday morning when they appeared in his court on charges of drunk driving and reckless driving.

Mrs. Grace Harper, Torrance, a housewife, was fined $300 following drunk driving charges preferred by Highway Patrol Officer E. G. Sawyer, who testified he arrested her in Santa Ana canyon east of Olive Nov. 25. She paid the fine.

Mrs. Louise Wightman Bixby of Palm Springs paid a $100 fine on a charge of operating her automobile 60 miles per hour for two miles and passing a car on the right-hand side at that speed. She was cited Nov. 27 by Patrolman L. J. Macoskey. She also paid her fine.

BIRTHDAY PARTY
SILVER ACRES. — Mr. and Mrs. Ben Faber were dinner hosts Monday evening, entertaining in honor of Mrs. Willis W. Cadwallader, who was observing her birthday.

Attending were Willis Cadwallader, John and David Cadwallader, Billy Cadwallader and Robert, Anna and Berend Faber.

RETURNS TO HOME
BARBER CITY. — Mrs. Floy C. Hilborn returned to her home on Frances street this week after an absence of five months, spent with relatives and friends in the north-west.

OLIVE
Olive sighed. She had been going to say that Nancy had once said that same thing about Tom, but she remembered that Nancy hadn't. Not that way, anyway. Not with that sure intensity with which she had been discussing Julian Howard.

NO GOOD
Instead she said, "It's going to do you no good. You're only going to be hurt and sick about it. And sorry."

"I don't think I'm ever going to be sorry."

Instinctively Olive knew she was speaking the truth and she was frightened.

There were so many things she didn't understand about Nancy, but which she accepted because that was what you had to do when you knew Nancy and you loved her.

There was her glorious enthusiasm, her energy which swung you along with it, and made you forget that you had any caution.

There was her recklessness. Olive called it that to herself, which made her say when she chose her friendship with Tom instead of a decent security with her uncle, "The hundred dollars a month doesn't matter. We can get along at that shop without business."

And I've had enough of his money anyway and thanked him enough."

As easy as that and no regrets. Olive couldn't understand that. She knew Nancy well enough to know that there would be no more regrets.

The decisions about the shop—Nancy made them quickly. She seemed to know what books would go, and what books wouldn't go. If she made mistakes, she always admitted them quickly, and never made excuses.

Olive herself was inclined to temporize, to delay a little, to move cautiously, a little delicately, especially where the gift buying was concerned.

ANOTHER PROPOSITION
"Mr. Blair also had another proposition, Nancy," she said slowly.

"Yes?"

"Mr. Howard told him to call you about it, but he decided he wouldn't. He thought he'd better come to me about it first, and then I could put it to you."

"I talked to Mr. Howard—well, it was about two hours ago now. He didn't say anything about a proposition."

TWO HOMES LOOTED BY BURGLARS

An unknown marauder netted nearly $250 worth of money, jewelry and clothing in two residence burglaries early Saturday night, police said today.

Burglaries of F. W. Slabaugh's home, 407 West Santa Clara street, and F. W. Strochein's house at 2220 Greenleaf street, were believed committed by the same person, although police found no identifying marks. Both houses were entered between 5:30 and 9 p. m. by breaking through a screen and window.

Strochein reported a $175 muskrat coat, $3 in cash, a gold ring and gold rimmed eye-glasses missing, and Slabaugh told police $40 worth of cash and jewelry was stolen from his house.

Ailing Detective Gets Prisoner

Detective Lieutenant Hunter Leach got his man—but ended in a sick bed at home as a result.

Leach was returning from Tucson with John J. Maddon, 25, wanted here on three counts of issuing fictitious checks, when he was taken suddenly ill. Local officers met Leach and his prisoner in Los Angeles, bringing the detective to his home and lodging Maddon in Orange county jail.

Leach's condition was reported "good" today at the police department. Maddon was returned here for trial after extradition had been granted on request of Governor Frank Merriam.

School Applies for Fictitious Name

Mrs. Arvilla M. Redfern's school of applied metaphysics at San Clemente, reason for a proposed $150,000 building, sought a legal name today.

A certificate of fictitious name was filed by Mrs. Redfern and her associate, Edna Mantor, declaring the school was being conducted in the San Clemente Social club-house.

"School of Applied Metaphysics of San Clemente" was the fictitious name given the school by Mrs. Redfern, who said last month that plans already had been drawn for a huge building to house her school.

I JUST FOUND OUT—

Much Glamor In Fish Canning

Five million mackerel will be converted into four and a half million cans of fish at bustling Newport harbor this year—and that just about tells the story of what one resort town does with itself when the pleasure season's over.

Mackerel runs are at their peak now; Newport's three canneries, consequently, are running full speed, pouring out $18,000 a week into the harbor district's trade channels in payrolls for nearly 100 fishermen, cannery hands and miscellaneous help.

Commercial fishing is the biggest thing that keeps Newport-Balboa alive after vacationists go home in autumn and before they get back next spring.

Because mackerel season is from September to February, and that's just the time harbor district citizens need employment most. Majority of cannery hands work around town during spring and summer at odd jobs that accompany the annual tourist boom.

November was a record month in Newport canneries, all three of which ran nearly every night putting up about 2,000,000 cans.

If you don't like night work, stay out of the fish canning business. Because fish are perishable commodities and mackerel, for instance, must be canned and sealed within 30 hours of the time they are caught.

The cannery day starts around 5 or 6 p. m. when fishing fleets are beginning to return from a day at sea. Canning ends only when the day's catch has been cared for.

Two hundred boats, manned by from one to five fishermen (averaging about three), supply fish for the Newport canneries. They leave at 2 or 3 a. m., fish from here to Oceanside depending on where mackerel schools are running, and come back when the boat's full or when dusk approaches.

This year's biggest catch: seven tons. That was in a bigger boat than the tiny Daisy, whose two-man crew brought in an incredible catch of five tons, 600 pounds, a few nights ago.

Canneries pay $21 a ton for mackerel, and an average day's catch will produce round one ton per fisherman.

Mackerel fishing is done almost entirely by strikers—barbless feathers on the end of a line—and only nets used are small scoop nets to catch fish when a particularly big school comes to the surface for free food.

Nearly all Newport fishermen belong to the Purse Seine and Fishermen's union, and most of them are old-timers who own at least a part interest in the boats they operate. Unlike some other Pacific coast harbors, the Newport fishermen are not predominantly Italian or Portuguese, but mostly are Yankees.

It's the glamour and salt air that keeps fishermen on the job year after year. When mackerel season's over, they'll start after bonita, then barracuda, tuna or sardines. Next summer, some will be fishing for albacore, highest priced cannery fish, and others will run live-bait boats for the amusement of tourists.

Many entire families live on fishing boats in the harbor. One crew that furnishes more than its quota of fish for the canneries is a family proposition—and the woman reputedly is a better fisherman than her husband. This family lives on board the year around.

Glamour of a different sort enters the lives of cannery hands. Their work is uncertain, will range from an hour or two one night up to 15 or 20 hours a few nights later. When fish aren't running so well, the cannery stays closed until it has enough fish to call out a crew. Then a loud whistle is sounded, and workers from all over the harbor start flocking to work. Sometimes they'll stay only a few minutes to clean up a few tons of mackerel.

During the current peak, cannery employees can count on a full night of work, and they probably will work steadily for the next two or three weeks. They're paid on a piecework basis, so don't mind the long hours when the cannery goes wide open.

Newport's three canneries are keyed up to high-speed production, run with the rhythm of an assembly line. The fish are carried along conveyor belts, reach a certain point and an automatic knife comes down, cutting off their heads and tails. Another gadget deftly swings them over on their back, so another knife can slit their sides and clean them. And so it goes, through the cooking, packing and vacuum sealing processes.

During peak season, a state sanitation inspector is on full-time duty at Newport harbor. Inspector currently checking up on health conditions in the canneries is Orin Linde.

Though accepted rates for a ton of fresh mackerel have jumped from $12 three years ago to 21 now, the finished product still is advertised as an inexpensive variety of canned fish for middleclass consumers. Southern California ports produce a big majority of the nation's supply.

In old days, fishing boats spent part of each day catching sardines, grinding them up and preparing them for bait. Now, however, the day's catch has been nearly doubled by a new plan. Canneries send some boats out to do nothing but catch bait. Using nets, these bait boats come home with a full load of sardines, sell them to the canneries at $21 a ton, and the canneries have them salted and prepared for re-sale on a non-profit basis to mackerel fishermen.

Major by-products of the Newport fish canneries is fertilizer, made from discarded heads, tails and innards. Processing makes this a high-quality fertilizer, cut-down cannery waste to practically nothing.

RAIN WORTH $250,000— IF WE GET IT

Rain between now and Christmas would release more than $250,000 for Christmas shopping in Orange county, according to estimates given out today by County Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs. Money now being held to pay for water for another irrigation would be available for general spending if the skies furnish the water.

That the first rain will be worth $250,000 here is a conservative estimate, Tubbs said. He added that it will mean many times more than this to thousands of crop producing trees in the county which need water for next year's production.

There are approximately 80,000 acres of land in the county planted in trees alone, said Tubbs, which are costing about two dollars an acre to irrigate. A rain, therefore, would mean an irrigation bill saving to ranchers owning this land of $160,000. An additional water bill of at least $90,000 is tied up in other agricultural lands here, he believes.

Orange county is experiencing its longest dry spell in 22 years, but will not suffer appreciably by it next year if sufficient rain falls during the months of December, January and February, Tubbs said.

Something for Nothing? Drug Stores Put It Out Every Day

By GEORGE COVERDALE

A Santa Ana drugstore is a place where a heterogeneous 15 to 25 thousand items are sold and the druggists fill in their spare time rendering free of charge first aid to fainting old women, warming babies' milk, selling stamps, preparing cathartics for immediate consumption, paging customers to the telephone, consoling lost children, making change for telephone users and filling fountain pens.

Aside from this the pharmacists and salesmen don't have much to do except to phone for taxis, furnish needles and thread for sewing buttons on garments, cash small checks, wrap packages from other stores in town, weigh gold nuggets and letters, place glue on envelopes, check parcels, move cars outside the store for convenience of customers, look up bus schedules, furnish information about pictures at local theaters and reveal locations of people, buildings and streets in Santa Ana.

SANTA WHITE FOX

THE STORY SO FAR: Helga returns to Toyland at dawn after a midnight skiing trip with the dangerous white fox that Santa has ordered to stay away from Toyland because he steals Christmas gifts.

CHAPTER SEVEN
WISE SANTA

Santa woke up that morning full of plans. He thought he'd ask the tin soldiers to drill first. The minute he finished breakfast he called the captain.

You can see he had no idea that Helga had been away from the toyshop all night.

"Ho, Guardsman," he shouted. "Bring up your men. We'll have an hour of drill."

The poor little captain was so tired from sitting up for Helga all night that he groaned to himself. His men looked very fine in bright red coats and tall black hats and silver swords.

"Ha-a-umph," shouted the captain, "P-r-r-d-m-rch!"

Forward marched the troops. But the farther they went the more clumsy grew the captain. He stumbled sleepily over his sword, and he turned right when he should have turned left.

A CLUE

Santa said nothing, but he scratched his head and began to look around the toyshop. He saw nothing disturbed. But his eye lit on a clue. There in a doll's carriage lay Helga asleep.

"M-m-m," said Santa. "This bears looking into."

He turned to the tin soldiers and looked around the toyshop. The poor, tired captain sat down on a drum and looked as though his feet ached.

Santa rose to look around the toyshop. Guess what he found? Helga's little silver skis, leaning against a doll's wardrobe, and when they rested on the floor was a tiny pool of water, as though fresh snow had melted from them.

"M-m-m," said Santa wisely. He turned to the tin soldier and said, "Perhaps we'd better have a talk."

The captain got up and timidly hopped onto Santa's hand. Santa sat in his armchair and said in a low voice, "Now tell me what it's all about."

SANTA ASKS QUESTIONS

The captain twisted his hat. His little tin cheeks were pink. "Sir, it is the part of a gentleman and a soldier to tell stories on some one else?" Santa's eyes twinkled.

"No, it isn't, Guardsman," he said. "If that's your trouble, I'll excuse you from telling me." But Santa is a wise man, so he had another plan. He said:

"Supposing I ask you some questions about what I'd like to do, and you tell me if the idea is wise?"

"That I can do," said the soldier. "Well, suppose I ask you and your company to stand guard tonight around Helga's bed. Would that be wise?"

"Sir, it would be quite wise," said the soldier.

"Well, Guardsman, can I trust you to stand guard then?" said Santa.

"Quite, Sir," said the tin soldier. So that night a guard of toy soldiers was set to wait for the call of the white fox at midnight.

Tomorrow: The Fox Returns.

PLAY GROUP IN FAMOUS MELODRAMA

Show to Be Held
In Court Room

Seats for "The Trial of Mary Dugan," to be presented by the Santa Ana Community Players every night this week except Friday, have been practically sold out for the end of the week.

According to Burr Shafer, business manager of the players, a large number of season ticket holders have not as yet made their reservations. He fears that if they wait until the end of the week, the seats will all be taken by those buying single tickets, and they will not be able to see the play, since the seating capacity of the court-room is very small. For this reason he urges all season ticket holders to reserve their tickets at once, and advises them to come tomorrow or tomorrow night if it is at all possible. They will be sure of getting seats these two nights.

Spectators at the dress rehearsal assure the public that it will not be necessary to wait until the end of the week to see a good performance. It is a really excellent.

This tense melodrama by Bayle Veiller is being directed by Gladys Shafer. The characters in the order of their appearance are: District attorney, Galway Franklin; Judge Nash, G. Kenneth Scovel; court clerk, Earl Abbey; Pauline Aggerro, Loreta Spangler; court interpreter, Charles Carillo; Dr. Welcome, Frank Harwood; court stenographer, Harold Fish; Edward West, Edward M. Hall; James Madison, Jerome Duffy; Police Inspector Hunt, Mayland Sims; Police Captain Price, Charles Searls; Dagmar Lorne, Helen Johnson; Mary Dugan, Marion Graft; Jimmy, George Tobias; Ferne Arthur, Lois Reese; Mrs. Edgar Rice, Ethel Macurda; Harry Jones, M. Kevin Sweeney; Patrick Kearney, Crawford Bayley; Marie Ducrot, Hazel Filer Kuenzli; Henry Plaisted, Harry Brackett; assistant district attorney, Claude Blakemore; bailiff, Fred Rowland; court attendants, Northrup Ellis and Victor Morrison.

The exciting play is being given a truly authentic atmosphere by being in superior court No. 2 of the county courthouse. Since the courtroom seats are not numbered, it is not possible to reserve definite seats. Consequently, the members of the audience desiring front seats are advised to come early. The play starts at 8:15. Tickets are on sale at the Santa Ana Book store.

CAJALCO DAM COMPLETED

Completion of the earth-fill construction of the dam and dike of the Cajalco reservoir, which involved the moving and placing of nearly 12 million tons of earth, was announced today in the office of General Manager F. E. Weymouth of the Metropolitan Water district.

Creating a man-made lake approximately three and a half miles long and two miles wide, which will store over 32 billion gallons of Colorado river water, these ponderous structures are a part of the reservoir of the 392-mile Metropolitan aqueduct.

Located in the Cajalco hills ten miles south of Riverside, this reservoir is at the terminus of the 24-mile main aqueduct and marks the beginning of the 150 miles of giant pipe lines and tunnels that will distribute water to each of the thirteen Southern California cities that comprise the Metropolitan Water district.

Making use of a natural bowl in the hills, the engineers located the giant dam across Cajalco canyon at the western end of this basin and built the long dike along the northern rim of the bowl to complete the reservoir.

Gracious Duo Entertains Again

Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Keech Join As Hostesses

Renewing the pleasure of sharing hostess duties for the first time in nearly 10 years, two delightful hostesses, Mrs. A. M. Gardner and Mrs. E. E. Keech, on Saturday gave the first of a series of bridge luncheons. The pleasant affair recalled to many of the guests the several other lovely parties that the two have given together in years gone by, and gave promise of an equally charming one next Saturday when they will entertain again.

A brilliantly colored vine-blossom was used by the clever hostesses to decorate their long luncheon table. A variety of the Japanese moonflower, its colors ranged from yellow through the vivid scarlet of autumn, and blended beautifully with the bright-hued maple leaves with which it was alternated.

Concluding the afternoon, dainty handkerchiefs were awarded as table prizes. Mrs. Keech and Mrs. Gardner were assisted in checking and receiving their guests by the latter's daughter, Mrs. J. L. Clayton, and by Mrs. C. P. Boyer.

Winner of second place and a $50 prize in the Robert Browning contest was: FEAST WITHOUT TRUMPETS. We shall have walls of panelled white and gold, A blue room, frailest violets to spray French needlepoint, Wedgewood and thin blown glass, And all we ever hungered for—someday.

We now have only claspboard and coarse meal, And firewood in an earth stained gunny sack, Cruel red dawns to take your arms from mine, Compassionate blue dusks to give them back.

A brown bird with a cello for a throat In our back yard, and lilacs at our door, A yellow haired Columbus with toy ships Finding little worlds upon the floor.

Someday—will it be next year or the next? I look at you, you look at me, we laugh, Such thin thin bread for two to hunger for Who break the full brown loaf with each a half.

ANNE HARLEY AVILA. Honorable mention: IN THE DEEP WHITE SNOW They heard my footsteps faint and low, And three deer wheeled in the forest breeze, In the deep white snow, By the slim white trees, They stood like nymphs on a Grecian frieze, Or like three lilies in a row, By the slim white trees, In the deep white snow, With the eyes of The Child born long ago— And I, & a snowman, fell on my knees In the deep, white snow, By the slim white trees.

Book Review of the Week

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of weekly book reviews of current publications which will appear each Monday in The Journal. A Review of "TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT" by Ernest Hemingway (Courtesy Treasure Isle Gift Shop, 506 North Main)

By MOLLY HARVEY

Once a literary sensation, Ernest Hemingway has now become almost a tradition of the American scene. Many have aped his terse vivid style of writing, his almost brutal treatment of his characters. But none have been so successful, and that is why the publication of a new Hemingway book is something of an event.

As may be expected "To Have and Have Not" is written to the tune of discordant music, is played under harsh lights. It is a story of violence, of carefully planned murder and betrayal. At the same time Hemingway shows us something of the sublime in even his toughest characters.

The story shifts from Key West to Havana, and introduces shady inhabitants of the underworld, dark skinned revolutionaries, asinine American tourists, and hard boiled government agents. It is not a pleasant tale.

Harry Morgan owned a cutter and a house. He was a family man, devoted to his oversized, peroxide blonde wife. What he did in the course of the story was due to his feeling of responsibility to maintain his home and provide a decent living for his wife and three daughters.

He made his living taking wealthy tourists on deep sea fishing trips. When one of these skipped out, owing Harry several hundred dollars he wondered why he had insisted on a legitimate racket. Soon he had the chance to smuggle over 12 Chinamen, at $100 a head. That was easy money for a night's work. Of course he couldn't take the risk of landing them in the States.

S.O.S. CLUB FETED AT LANDIS HOME

Mrs. Herman Landis entertained members of the S. O. S. club, young woman's service organization of the Church of the Brethren, in her home, 407 South Garvey street Friday afternoon.

The day was spent in working and planning for a Christmas gift and food sale, which is to be held Saturday, Dec. 11 in the Grand Central market.

A basket lunch was served from a ping-pong table on the lawn of the home. Those enjoying the session were Mrs. William Clegg, Mrs. Ellsworth Baker, Mrs. Paul Baker, Mrs. Don Baker, Mrs. Harold Baker, Mrs. Clarence Lane, Mrs. Jay Myers, Mrs. Jerry Hoover, Mrs. Carl Sissel and daughter Carolyn, Mrs. Paul Teter and Baby Douglas, Mrs. Harold Hollinger and daughter Esther of Anaheim, and the hostesses, Mrs. Byrl Harper of Huntington Beach, and Mrs. Landis. The club will meet Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Donald Baker, 317 Lacy street.

CHINA TO BE TOPIC FOR W.C.T.U. MEET

Giving a talk on her recent trip to China, Mrs. Charles P. Boyer, of Tustin avenue, will be the featured speaker at the regular meeting of the Tustin W. C. T. U. at 2 p. m. Friday Dec. 10, at the home of Mrs. J. O. Preble, East Main street. Mrs. Sarah M. G. Brown, first vice-president, will preside.

The devotional period will be in charge of Mrs. Eleanor Duncan and a report on the recent county executive board meeting held at Anaheim Christian church will be given by Mrs. Margaret R. Utt.

Musical numbers will include accordion selections by Marjorie Bowman and Spencer Elliott, Jr., of Santa Ana. The hostess invites all members and interested friends of the Union to be present.

Popular Pair Have Quiet Nuptials

Quiet rites marked by their simplicity and dignity were read at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, joining two prominent Orange county young people, Miss Agnes DeBusk and James Shaw Farquhar, jr., both of Huntington Beach. The home of Justice of the Peace Kenneth L. Morrison, 524 Linwood street, was the setting.

Judge Morrison read the ceremony witnessed by a small group of the immediate family and a few intimate friends, and a wedding reception for the same group followed the rites in Daniger's cafe. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter DeBusk, was attired in a tailored black suit with white silk blouse and black accessories. She carried a beautiful white gladiolus, lilies of the valley, and larkspur.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Clarence Double, who wore a pink frock and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas and roses. Willoughby Farquhar, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

Included in the group who witnessed the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Farquhar, parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. Walter DeBusk, mother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. George Farquhar, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Wyle, Miss Opal De Busk, Billy De Busk, Willoughby Farquhar, Joe Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Double, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Farquhar, Capt. and Mrs. Lancelot A. Farnum and daughters June and Jane, Mrs. Samuel Crooks and Sam, Jr., Miss Vera Hemphill, Jack Runnels, Miss Madeline Paxton, and Carl Frazer.

The nuptials mark the culmination of a romance which began six years ago when both the bride and groom were students in the Huntington Beach High school. Following yesterday's ceremony, they drove to Santa Barbara where they will make their home. Mr. Farquhar represents the General Motors Acceptance corporation there.

The bride attended Santa Ana Junior college after graduation from Huntington Beach High school, and was prominent in both institutions for her lovely singing.

The groom received his A. B. degree in May from the University of California at Berkeley, where he was the Bear's ace diver for two years. He won first place two successive years in the Stanford-California meet, and was a member of the varsity water polo team. His father, J. S. Farquhar, is publisher of the Huntington Beach News.

AUXILIARY HEARS OF COMING EVENTS

Coming events held the interest of members of Ernest L. Kellogg auxiliary, V. F. W. Junior college, when they met in Knights of Pythias hall with Mrs. Juanita Cozad, president, conducting the session.

Announcements were made that a bazaar and rummage sale will be sponsored by the group at 407 West Fourth street on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11, supervised by Mrs. Esther Hendrickson and Mrs. Anna McCleary. The post and auxiliary will join for a pot-luck dinner in the K. of P. hall Friday evening, Dec. 10, at 6:30 o'clock with friends and prospective members invited as special guests.

The committee for the month announced that the Christmas party will be held in the K. of P. hall on Monday evening, Dec. 20, for the children of post and auxiliary members, and a gift exchange for the adults. Mrs. Ruth O'Malia reported that her committee would visit the Sawelle hospital on Thursday, Dec. 16.

Mrs. Lena Hansen will be hostess to the sewing club in her home, 320 East Pomona street, on Dec. 30 for a pot-luck luncheon. After Friday night's meeting, a dessert course was served by Mrs. Edna McCleary, Mrs. Lurline Clayton and Mrs. Lena Hansen.

COUNTY WOMEN WILL MEET

For their regular bi-monthly session, the executive board of the Orange County Federated Women's clubs will gather in the Fullerton Eboli club at 10 a. m. Wednesday, Dec. 8.

A luncheon will be served at noon, and the program for the day will include "Echoes from the Southern District Convention at Long Beach" by various delegates, "Spirit of Christmas" by Mrs. Donald Cruickshank, Christmas music by Mrs. Walter Ross, and a discussion of county institutions by A. W. McBride.

WILL WINTER IN SANTA ANA

Mrs. George Spaulding, who spent the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Helen Cappeline, in the D. K. Hammond home at 2024 Victoria drive, returned to her former home in Minneapolis a few weeks ago, expecting to spend the winter there.

The temperature fell below zero soon after her arrival, however, and she returned to Santa Ana, where she is occupying an apartment at 1408 North Broadway.

Yule Colors Decorate Table

Sparkling iridescent Christmas decorations made Mr. and Mrs. George S. Briggs' dinner table unusually beautiful Saturday night when they entertained sixteen at dinner. Frosted clusters of crystal grapes in red and silver tones were emphasized by the slim red tapers in silver holders and crisp red bows that set off the handsome lace cloth.

Later contract was enjoyed, with handsome high-score prizes being awarded Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Swales and Lieut. Commr. and Mrs. I. F. Landis.

The affair was one of several that Mr. and Mrs. Briggs, an outstandingly hospitable couple, have planned for the Christmas season.

MRS. ANDERSON HOSTESS TO LUNCHEON CLUB

Mrs. V. J. Anderson, 930 South Mock street, was hostess to the Golden State luncheon club, Friday, with Mesdames Enola Morse, Pearl Garr and Myrtle Underwood acting as co-hostesses. Twenty-eight were present.

A covered dish luncheon was enjoyed at noon when members were seated at tables decorated with Christmas appointments. A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Margie Boyd. Mrs. Nellie Baker, oratrice of Golden State Camp, R. N. A., was reported convalescent at home after an operation, and sent greetings to the club members.

Mrs. Lenore Fletcher, district deputy, from Long Beach, was a guest. A Christmas reading was given by Mrs. Flora DeBoe, following which a Christmas gift exchange was enjoyed by all present. The door prize went to Mrs. Neva Weekly.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Neva Weekly 1626 Chestnut, Long Beach, Jan. 7. Election of officers will take place at that time.

MRS. FARMER TO HEAD MOTHERS GROUP

The home of Mrs. Harry Crowe, retiring president, at 827 North Bristol street, was the scene of a meeting last week of the Mothers' circle of Job's Daughters, gathering for semi-annual election of officers.

Mrs. Ed Farmer was elected to the presidency of the group during the period. She will be assisted by Mrs. Guy Christian as vice president; Mrs. Sam R. Butler as secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. M. W. Ball as chairman of chaperones for the dances.

Enjoying a pot-luck luncheon at noon were Mrs. J. C. Rogers, Mrs. J. W. Jones, Mrs. Lily J. Banks, Mrs. Andy Crawford, Mrs. Claude McFarren, Mrs. B. F. McCausland, Mrs. Ernest Horstman, Mrs. F. W. Eddy, Mrs. Rebecca Pletke, and Mrs. Ernest Winbigler.

LOCAL BETHEL TO INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

Formal rites will attend the installation of Jacob's Sons of Bethel, V. F. W. Junior college, this coming Wednesday evening when open ceremonies will be held at the Masonic temple.

Miss Margaret Abel will become honored guest, following in the footsteps of Miss Mary Crowe, who, for other past officers, will meet one of them, although I seldom can tell them from the ordinary run of women, who ape them outwardly so well. I am willing to worship at the feet of a good woman anytime, but I wish there were more of them and I could be sure when I find one of them. If women ever get into a position where they run America, you can tell all the world I am beating it in a great hurry to the most remote desert isle I can find. Yours truly, FRED.

Mary Stoddard Man Refers to Shabbily Dressed Men in Continuing Jack's Argument

"How many men do you see walking down the street shabbily dressed, or even in overalls, while the wife walks beside him looking like a millionaire's wife?"

This question is asked by a man who takes up the fight for our correspondent "Jack" who recently claimed most wives of today care more about cosmetics and clothes than they do about their husbands.

His letter follows: Dear Miss Stoddard: Although I read your column quite regularly this is the first time in all my life I've ever written to you or any other column of the same sort. But I can no longer remain silent after reading the letters criticizing Jack who wrote about wives in general—his own in particular.

My experience with women (and it has been quite extensive) has proven to me that no more than one woman out of five is capable of making a good wife and mother. The other four are self centered, selfish, whimsy, petty, snarky, and cheap. The question of morals is not entering into this structure, just traits and mentality.

There is talk about women helping men. Bah! All the four out of five do is help him throw his money away. They must have fall clothes, winter coats, spring and summer coats while he is lucky if he gets a new overcoat once in two years. The same with shoes and silk stockings. Women's shoes are so paper-thin and fragile that they are constantly wearing out and the styles change so often that new shoes, new dresses, new coats and hats are the bane of the married man.

How many men do you see walking down the street shabbily dressed or even in overalls, while the wife walks beside him in silks, dressed in the height of fashion, looking more like a millionaire's wife than the wife of a working man or farmer?

And face powder, lipstick, fingernail polish, hair waves and permanents, dresses and hats, all the while she is rotting away.

How many things she has to have to save her from being humiliated and disgraced, while all a man gets is tobacco, sports and liquor when life gets too utterly unbearable.

Now, of course, I am not denying that there are some rotters among the men, too. There are plenty of them, and for them I make no excuse, but there are not near so many men rotters as women. I'm beginning to think men who marry are either great fools or great gamblers.

Jack is probably much too old embracing. He doesn't even allow for one out of five, but all in all he was not so far off as some of his critics claim. You tell 'em, Jack. They'll stick if they have to, but just give them a chance to see how fast they run home to mother and dad, or go elsewhere to get away from the poor husband when his income drops.

Now I hasten to add this. There is nothing on earth so fine as a sweet, noble, good woman. I take my hat off to them every time I meet one of them, although I seldom can tell them from the ordinary run of women, who ape them outwardly so well. I am willing to worship at the feet of a good woman anytime, but I wish there were more of them and I could be sure when I find one of them. If women ever get into a position where they run America, you can tell all the world I am beating it in a great hurry to the most remote desert isle I can find. Yours truly, FRED.

High score prize went to Dr. Mary E. Wright, and her other guests were Mrs. J. L. Allen and Mrs. G. P. Campbell.

Try A New Ski-Ball Party

By JUDITH WILSON

The present craze for winter sports has swept into popularity a number of drinks and gourmet dishes which add enormously to the pleasures of skating, skiing and bob-sledding. One of the most welcome of these additions to cold weather fun is a new hot beverage aptly called the "Ski-Ball."

Ski-Ball parties have become popular among snow and ice enthusiasts. They also appeal to stay-by-the-fires who want something different.

To do the thing right, a Ski-Ball should be made and served with ceremony. At the resorts a special glass is used. It is a cute mug of thick glass, with an extra heavy bottom and a handle. However, this spicy, exhilarating drink tastes just as good in any handled glass or mug that will withstand boiling hot liquid.

Here's how! At the bottom of the glass place 1 1/2 teaspoons granulated sugar. Stick a quarter-inch slice of lemon with 12 large whole cloves and put this on top of the sugar. Next stand upright in the glass a stick of cinnamon that is long enough to use as a muddler. Now that your props are ready, fill the glass with freshly made 5-minute tea. Immediately there will arise an incense of Eastern spices borne to your nostrils on the steaming vapors of the equally Oriental tea.

For best results the tea has to be brewed just right. Use 1 teaspoon tea for every cup of furiously boiling water, and let it steep a full 5 minutes. They prefer black tea, which, despite its color, develops a lovely amber liquid that is rich in flavor. Incidentally, if you wish, a little rum or whiskey can be added, and a slice of clove-studded orange substituted for the lemon.

The Ski-Ball is a grand pick-upper, and while it was originated for the athletes of the ski jumps and skating rinks, it doesn't need an Arctic setting. It makes a picturesque drink for all occasions.

With it belongs food with a nip—spicy Indian curry, chili con carne with plenty of chili, a piping hot dish of spaghetti with a spicy sauce.

STANDARD LIFE GROUP NAMES OFFICERS

More than 40 guests attended a dinner given Thursday night by the Standard Life Association at M. W. A. hall. Honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Wilson of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Freeman of Anaheim.

An important feature of the evening was election of officers, at which time Eileen Baker was named president; Mrs. Mary Jarrett, vice president; Mrs. Lillian Harrie, chairman; Mrs. Georgia Mills, guide; Mrs. Minnie Harris, captain; J. E. Armstrong, inner guard; T. L. Warren, outer guard; Mrs. Clara McCord, treasurer; and Mrs. Vada Pankey, trustee.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Martha Schreff, retiring president, the group planned a Christmas entertainment to be given Dec. 16, for which Mrs. Schreff will be in charge.

The dinner was arranged by Mrs. T. L. Warren and Mrs. Vada Pankey.

FLYER SEEKS NEW RECORDS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—An assault on three world records by Jacqueline Cochran of New York and a 25-plane cruise from Miami to Havana served as an anti-climax today to the all-American air maneuvers.

Miss Cochran, who established a New York-Miami record of 4 hours, 12 minutes, 28 seconds last Friday, planned to attempt speed records at 100, 50 and 25 miles.

Among pilots entered in the Havana cruise was Richard Archbold of New York, who flew his 14-ton flying boat non-stop from San Diego, Calif., in 14 hours, 10 minutes, last Saturday.

Miami's annual air show, marked by a crash of Rudy Kling and Frank Haines, closed yesterday with S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., winning the Glenn H. Curtiss trophy race.

Wittman, piloting a silver-nosed racer, won easily at about 213 miles an hour. Harry Hammell of Austin, Tex., finished second, and Bob Davis of Bloomington, Ill., third.

Importer Shoots Woman, Self

NEW YORK (AP)—Marino Fanti, well-known Brooklyn feather importer, lay near death today, faced with the prospect, if he recovers, of being tried for the slaying of his secretary, Mrs. Bertha Nolan, 35-year-old widow.

Fanti was suffering from a self-inflicted bullet wound and Assistant District Attorney William E. McCarthy said he had admitted slaying the woman.

Policemen found the pair in Fanti's expensive automobile last night. Mrs. Nolan died from a bullet wound in the head and Fanti slumped in the seat beside her, also shot in the head.

McCarthy quoted Fanti's wife as saying Mrs. Nolan had asked her several months ago to obtain a divorce, and Fanti, too, had proposed divorce.

Mrs. Nolan was the mother of two daughters, the eldest 18. The Fantis have four children.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

By JOHN HIX

"VICTORIA FOR PRESIDENT..."
"Yes Victoria we've selected For our chosen head; With Fred Douglass on the ticket We will raise the dead!"
Strange as it seems, these words, sung to the tune of "Comin' Thru the Rye," formed the battle cry of the Equal Rights party in 1872 in the first attempt to seat a woman as President of the United States — Victoria Claflin Woodhull!

Born at Homer, Ohio, in 1838, Victoria as a girl traveled about the country following the career of a charlatan, selling patent medicines and telling fortunes.
In 1872 the Equal Rights party selected this amazing personality as its candidate for presidency, as its candidate for presidency, a woman as President of the former as prospective vice president. She actually included "free love" among her platform promises!

Victoria Woodhull was defeated in this campaign by Grant, Republican candidate, but ran again in 1880, although residing in England at the time, and in 1894 made a final, futile attempt at the office.

A New Kind of Engineer

It has often been said that nobody really knows anything about money. The more experience the world has with the vagaries of money the truer this generality appears to be. Arthur Brisbane, Hearst columnist, was forever reiterating his belief that neither bankers, economists nor philosophers had any real grasp of what money is, how it may be controlled, or what it may be expected to do next for the world, or to the world. Brisbane was mistaken about many matters, perhaps right about this one.

It is to be observed that those who pretend to know the most about economics and finances usually are the very ones whose forecasts are least dependable. You have often seen a man who simply "knew" that, for instance, the nation was about to launch off into a period of inflation. He might believe it to the extent that he would risk his own money in Wall Street stocks as a hedge against what he "knew" was going to happen, only to see business sink into a deflation instead.

Henry Ford, declaring the present business recession "temporary and artificial," as indeed it appears to be, charges the whole trouble to the stock market and "the money system."

He calls for "a new race of financial engineers whose pride will be the social efficiency of the system rather than their profit-making possibilities."

"The need," he adds, "is here, the ability to produce is here; the stoppage is in the system that puts profits before production—and that is the money system."

A bit socialistic sounding and a trifle vague. Nevertheless, in his demand for "a new race of financial engineers" certainly correct. For what Mr. Ford is saying is that we need somebody who knows something about money, and that is undeniable.

The fellow who has invented a self-sealing envelope should go right ahead and invent a self-writing letter to put in it.

Trials of the Dictators

The job of being a conquering dictator carries with it a lot of work. In fact, the dictating and the conquering often have to be done over and over. Japan is beginning to find this out, and so is Mussolini.

The Ethiopians, supposedly thoroughly licked a year or two ago, have been taking advantage of the heavy rains to harass II Duce's outposts.

To what an extent the East Africans have been making themselves troublesome is indicated by an official report made public in Rome that 113 airplanes have been in use carrying supplies and ammunition to the attacked Italian forces and in bombing and machine-gunning the insurgents.

The loss of 30 to 40 soldiers a month, the destruction of considerable property, the severing of the railroad line to Djibouti and the interruption of service are among the results of the uprisings of the natives, army chiefs inform the Italian government.

And the heavy economic drain on the conquering countries continues.

Pain-in-the-necks of 1937: The radio football announcer who always acts as if he's the one who's carrying the ball.

Let's Have a Smile

Englishmen of the future will do their smiling—and biting—with American-made teeth, if plans to send millions of molars as part of a reciprocal trade agreement are worked out.

Which brings up one of those tremendously important changes in our way of living which we are inclined to take so casually.

Today, practically everyone has a full set of teeth, whether they are home-grown or machine-made. But just a century ago, a full set of teeth on an adult was a rarity.

In past generations, loss of a front tooth was a tragedy which would ruin for life the appearance of a good-looking man or woman. Imagine going through life with just a few teeth stuck in your gums.

Today, loss of a tooth is merely an inconvenience.

The development of modern dentistry is something of which Americans can be proud—and they've got the teeth to give it a big smile!

Both sides in Spain reject neutrals' plan for an armistice. They have good hands and want to play them.

Frog-Jumping Contest

Some reporting gentlemen who hang around New York have been digging for odds on Mr. Roosevelt's future political chances. Such speculation, they think, is necessary because Mr. Roosevelt has not followed the Coolidge formula and announced that he does not choose to run in 1940.

One reporter, who covers horse races, prize fights and such events, found a betting commissioner who offered 12 to 1 that Mr. Roosevelt would not be nominated in 1940. However, he copped that bet slightly by offering 2 to 1 that if he were nominated he would be elected.

Our only comment is that such goings-on pervert the old-fashioned notion of betting, in which each man picked a bullfrog and bet that he would jump farthest—not whether he would jump at all.

Los Angeles' hill-taking-a-walk may be some of that annexed real estate heading back home.

FAIR Enough

Officials Should Pay Income Tax

By Westbrook Pegler

On the basis of an old supreme court decision, a totally different kind of case, it is still held that the federal government has no right to levy an income tax on the pay of almost five million officials and employees of the states and their subdivisions.

The payroll for this horde of dead-weights, who have been getting their civilization at reduced rates at the expense of their neighbors, is estimated at three billion dollars a year, but the treasury has taken only a half-hearted interest in the case, because the returns would be petty by comparison with that which might be derived from an income tax on the return from tax-exempt bonds, federal, state and various.

The exemption goes back to a remark by Justice Marshall more than a hundred years ago, before the income tax was ever proposed. He said that the "power to tax was the power to destroy," but he was discussing a case in which the state of Maryland was attempting to impose a prohibitive tax to prevent an agency of the federal government from operating in Maryland.

NOT DESTRUCTIVE
The imposition of the federal income tax on the salaries of governors, judges, state, county and city attorneys, teachers, engineers, and commissioners by the hundred thousand would be no more body by which they are employed than the imposition of the same tax is to the private employers whose hired help have been paying the tax for years.

If this taxing power is destructive, then the private employer must be well-nigh indestructible for it has never even occurred to the most artful tax-dodger among them to raise the point. The truth is that when the taxing power is used to the point of destruction there comes first a squawk and then, if the pressure isn't lifted, a fight. And if the income tax rates of the present day are not destructive to private enterprise they would be no more injurious to the states and their subdivisions.

GOVERNMENT NOT HURT
In addition to which it should be emphasized that a tax collected from an official is not a contribution to the inferior government, but a contribution to the government itself, but the individual who draws the salary, as often as not a useless political barnacle who no more represents the dignity and sovereignty of the state than a cootie in a doughboy's shirt represents the authority of the commander in chief.

In New York state the attorney general has just rendered an opinion upholding a law passed by the last legislature suspending an old tradition exemption whereby 300 state's officers and employees, most professional politicians, were excused from the state income tax as well as federal. They now have to pay the state tax, although still immune to the federal, and the gain to the state will be about $275,000 a year. The exemption never did exist in law but only in opinions by two former attorneys general, whose own immunities were affected by their decisions, and it crumbled like cigarette ash the first time it was attacked.

MOOCHERS LOSE
This gink who is unable to pay his taxes in the scrap between the taxpayers and the class of moochers who live on them, and though small, it is a beginning.

Nevertheless, the contention that to tax the legally established salary for a political job is to reduce the salary and thereby violate the law is no longer heard with patience, in view of the fact that a private employee with a salary contract has always been subject to this tax since the amendment was adopted. In his case it is held that after the money is passed to him it is his income, and nobody has been able to justify the claim that any different process exists in the public service. True, some legislatures have extended the fiction to the point of preventing garnishment for the just debts of themselves and their kind, but that is just another effort which needs but be understood to be revoked.

The point to be made, understood and finally carried is that any employee of any branch of the government is a private individual in his private affairs. The state has no responsibility for a burglary committed by a cop or a seduction by a judge, and the cop or judge is a citizen and should be a taxpayer on a common footing with the rest of the minute he signs the payroll and sticks the money in his pants. It should require no constitutional amendment to establish a fact as obvious as this. An amendment gives congress the right to tax income "from whatever source derived," and with that authority congress need only affirm in explicit words its intention to include these political incomes.

Bright Moments

During the war between Austria and France, in the late 18th century, Alexander II was emperor of Russia. The German feudal families were much intermarried with the Russian aristocracy. Much correspondence passed between the families living in the two nations. At the time Alexander had clamped on a very severe censorship. One day he told his friend, Ledue: "I resent the criticism of Russian politics by the German princes. What is especially offensive to me is that my German cousins send their rude remarks through the post in order that they may be sure to come to my personal knowledge."

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Roosevelt maps new spending plan with Ickes, Hopkins on cruise; Richberg, Stanley appear in Washington in behalf of auto firms; hand-shaking a science with President; can greet 1100 seals in 2000-mile swim of Pacific the great riddle of nature.

WASHINGTON.—The presence of Secretary Ickes and Relief Administrator Hopkins in the President's fishing party was a last-minute decision. The reason behind it was a new spending program partly being deliberated in the inner council.

Ickes and Hopkins are the big spending authorities of the New Deal. Five years' experience lauding out billions have taught them what can and cannot be done. So if a new "shot in the arm" is undertaken, it will be their job to do the shooting. Further, both are strong advocates of the view that more spending is necessary to combat the business slump.

That Ickes and Hopkins were taken cruising while Secretary Morgenthau, No. 1 economist, was left behind with the budget balancing, it highly significant. It reveals how far along the way toward a pump-priming Roosevelt has gone.

He has not entirely made up his mind yet that additional spending is required. But he definitely does not intend to take any chances with letting the recession plummet into a full blown depression.

If by March conditions show no signs of bettering, he will be ready to unlock the treasury again—Mr. Morgenthau notwithstanding.

Meanwhile he is getting ready for fast spending action if it has to be taken. That was what was discussed between bites off the Florida Keys.

LEGAL LOBBYING JOBS
Donald R. Richberg, one-time NRA boss and assistant president, together with William Stanley, executive assistant to the president, have fallen into unique and highly important legal lobbying jobs.

They are representing General Motors, Chrysler and Ford in discussions with the justice department to settle charges of anti-trust law violations.

The charges grew out of complaints by dealers that they were forced to do business exclusively with finance companies controlled by the big three—Ford, Chrysler and General Motors.

A Milwaukee, Wis., federal grand jury recently reopened an investigation of a case pending for more than a year. Richberg and Stanley immediately appeared at the justice department on the plea that prosecutions would disturb already wobbly business conditions, and tried to negotiate an out of court settlement.

Once a labor lawyer and a partner of Secretary Ickes, Richberg has gone in for corporation practice in a big way since leaving the New Deal. He is now a partner in the law firm of Joseph Davies, U. S. ambassador to Russia, and husband of the former Mrs. Marjorie Post Hutton, multi-millionaire food heiress.

Bill Stanley is in an even stranger position. While engaged in private practice, he still draws $10,000 a year from the government as special assistant to the attorney general.

This extraordinary status results from a special act of congress. While assistant attorney general, Stanley handled the fight against the late William Waldorf Astor estate to recover $20,000,000 in inheritance taxes.

When Stanley resigned from the justice department, Atty. Gen. Cummings told congress that Stanley's services were so important in the Astor case the government could not afford to lose him. Cummings asked that Stanley be continued as counsel by a special act.

NOTE—The Astor case is now pending in the circuit court where it was appealed by the estate after a government victory in the district court of Southern New York.

HAND-SHAKING
The President has his hand-shaking down to a science. At a White House reception, he can step up to the head of a receiving line at 9 o'clock, ask an aide, "How many have we got this evening?" and figure out just when his task will be finished.

He figures on the basis of 1100 an hour, allowing for rest periods. He can go into action at 9 o'clock, shake hands for three shifts of 15 or 20 minutes each, with two breathing spells of four or five minutes each, and be through at 10 o'clock, or shortly after.

The Roosevelt receptions range in size from 900 to 1100—much smaller than the Hoover receptions of three and four thousand.

Aides keep the line moving with the precision of an assembly line in an auto plant. Guests approaching in couples are instructed by aide No. 1 to form single column, with "the gentleman first, please."

Aide No. 2 says, "Name, please," then pronounces the name to the President, and if the guest is inclined to linger, the aide gives him a gentle tug at the arm.

The President says, "How do you do?" or "good evening," as he shakes hands, but does not repeat the name of the guest, unless he is a personal acquaintance.

Then he passes the guest's hand along to Mrs. Roosevelt, on his right, and she gives a husbandly less hearty than her husband's.

The progress of the line is somewhat less rapid with the diplomatic reception, for the foreign dignitaries cannot be hustled.

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in office imagines to be public opinion, is in a state of confusion. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, intelligent fair discussion of our problems is immensely useful. So that every citizen may have his say and contribute to the formation of public opinion, the journal invites letters to The Mailbag.

COUNTY HOSPITAL

To the Editor: Three months in one bed and undergoing three operations at the county hospital ought to lend weight to the casual observations of the occupant of the bed.

I noticed among other things that the place was run so that inspection could be had at any time except perhaps when the beds were being changed or made up, also that no special privileges or partiality was shown, no difference was discernible in the food attention to those who paid or could pay the modest fee required for bed, board, nurse and orderly service; also that staff doctors and internes with specialists donating their services at stated dates.

The hospital attended to building up and keeping track of the patients' ability to go through. All sick people are a little cranky at times, but for myself and the others in my ward, I never once had a reasonable request refused.

I consider that Orange county has a right to be proud of its county hospital. They take anything the ambulance brings in and do the best they can in a good natured way, which is more than I could.

What Other Editors Say

THE POOR WOODCUTTER

That tale from Phillips, Wis., sounds like an invention of the Brothers Grimm. While going about his occupation in the forest, a poor woodcutter was attacked by a huge black bear. He struggled vainly in the bear's grasp and cried weakly for help. Suddenly a rescuer appeared and, seizing the woodcutter's ax, split the bear's head open with one mighty blow. But here the story departs from the Grimm tradition, for the hero was not a prince who had been turned out of the palace by the cruel king, his father, nor was it a giant whom the woodcutter had once befriended. It wasn't even that wonder-worker, Rumpelstiltskin. It was an editor from Chicago who swung that ax and killed that bear and saved the poor woodcutter, a fellow who trained for action with nothing more lethal than a blue pencil. Just another illustration of the power of the press.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

DON'T RUN YOUR BATTERY DOWN

These foggy mornings you drive down town with your lights on, and then forget to turn them off. Result, the battery gets run down and presently the starter won't work. Of course you expected the mechanic to inspect the battery when you had the car serviced, but even that did not recharge the cells.

And these winter days you abuse your health in much the same way. You over-work, over-eat, over-smoke and perhaps even over-drink. You fill up the system with foods that taste good and do not build up vitality. You neglect exercise and health habits because you are too busy. You do not even run the old carcass into a service station to have it inspected.

No wonder your body battery runs down as you go down and sends you to the hospital for expensive repairs which never make you quite as good as you were before. Take care of yourself. Do at least as much for your own good as you do for the good of your car. Ralph Smedley in S. A. Rotary Wheelbarrow.

I'll Tell You

By BOB BURNS

Anytime you find somebody owing money to somebody else, you have an embarrassing situation. Sometimes people will forget that they owe you money and if you don't remind them of it, you'll never get it, but if you come right out and ask 'em for it bluntly, they resent it and you've made an enemy.

I think the cleverest man at handlin' this delicate subject was my Uncle Sanky. He use'ta publish a paper down home and when some of his subscribers got behind in their subscriptions, he figured out a way of remindin' 'em of it without hurtin' their feelin's. He come out with a little article in his editorial column that read: There is a small matter that some of our subscribers have forgotten. To us it's important. It's necessary in our business. We are very modest and don't like to speak about such things.

Sincerely yours,
Sanky, publisher.

FOOTBALL FOOLISHNESS

A South Side fatter said to his wife: "A man was going to send me a free ticket to the football game. Have you seen anything of it?"

"A ticket came by mail without any writing," his wife replied, "and I think Junior used it."

"Well," the fatter said, "that was the first time I was shut out of a game by an intercepted pass."

Many of us somehow always associate Fanny Brice with the plaintive song she sang in the Mid-nite Frolic, called "My Man." A shawled blonde, she leaned against the post holding a dull blob of gas light that revealed a mean Paris street. While she sang, a nation wide man-hunt for her husband, the notorious Nickey Arnstein, was in progress and naturally added to the poignancy of her lament. The theme of that song—no matter what happens, the maid still loves her man—has threaded Miss Brice's life. Her most recent headline flare-up concerned the intention of her husband, Billy Rose, to ask her to divorce him so he could marry another. The show-must-go-on and the Pagliacci touch are not press agent imaginings in her unhappy career. She is a true and beloved trouper.

He began his New York career as a movie critic and then, after a brief sojourn in the States, he launched a periodical called The Family Circle, devoted to the grocery and allied trades. It clicked from the kick-off.

He was seeking relief from the tedium of a complete nervous breakdown when he decided to write detective stories merely to divert the agony of his travail. Under the pseudonym S. S. Van Dine, he created the Philo Vance tales that became constant best sellers. Before his illness he had been a high born authority on art, philosophy and Egyptology. Now, in his choice of several country estates, his diversion is breeding fine dogs, especially the Scottie. He is also an authority on tropical fish. O, yes, he sports a Van Dyke.

My personal vanity is nothing to shoot at any more, although it had its day. Still, I find it rather difficult to pass one of those expansive window mirrors without sneaking a peek. Judge Stump

Dear Judge: Ever know a grocery clerk who didn't pick out the oldest eggs first and sell them as "fresh"? G. B.
My Uncle Sycamore Stump once complained to his grocery clerk that the last eggs he got weren't fresh, and the grocery clerk said, "All right, Syc, you pick your eggs this time." Which was just Uncle Sycamore's opening. "Pick 'em," said he. "That's the trouble, I'm still pickin' pin feathers out of the last dozen." STUMP.
